Chinese President Xi Jinping visited Moscow on March 20, 2023 and talks with Putin

(Voice of Germany Chinese) According to a research report from the Atlantic Council of the American Think Tank, since the beginning of 2022, some countries have added trade with Russia, including non -allied countries and even some EU member states. The report believes that the surge in trade with Russia is not necessarily the indicator of the war that supports Putin, but it is more likely to be the result of cheaper export goods in the company and the country to fill the new gap in the Russian market.

The report wrote that countries that have increased sharply with Russia include Turkish NATO, Turkey, Greek, EU member states, and India in the United States. In 2022, India's trade with Russia increased by nearly 250%year -on -year, Greece's trade with Russia increased by 100%year -on - year, and Turkey's trade with Russia increased by 93% year-on-year. India and Turkey provide an important lifeline for the key areas of the Russian economy. India has surpassed the European Union, becoming the second largest oil export destination in Russia after China Essence Turkey is now an important supplier of Russia's electronic machinery and components, including integrated circuits and semiconductors. Turkey also exports a large number of chemicals, plastics, rubber products and vehicles to Russia. Under the pressure of the Seventh Kingdom Group, Turkey has agreed to stop transshipment to Russia to be sanctioned.

Sino -Russian trade increased by 27% last year

The report pointed out that although China is Russia's largest trading partner and China -Russia trade reached a record 188 billion US dollars last year, its growth rate was only 27% year-on-year. "Considering that China's economic scale is more than 20 times that of Russia's second largest trading partner Turkey, China -Russia trade is not so prominent, and it is lower than many American allies and partners and Russia's trade."

The report believes that the increase in Sino -Russian trade is related to the strategy of "looking east" by Russia from 2013. In addition, the depreciation of the RMB against the US dollar and rubles in 2022 also increased China's competitiveness to Russia's exports. From the perspective of China, the trade amount of China and Russia is equivalent to China and Malaysia's trade, far lower than that of China and Vietnam. The size of these two economies is only one-fifth of Russia.

Sino -Russian relations change: from brothers, opponents to strategic partners

The initial ally

On the second day of the establishment of the People's Republic of China on October 1, 1949, the Soviet Union became the first country to establish diplomatic relations with China. At the end of the year, Mao Zedong went to Moscow to visit and stayed in the Soviet Union for more than two months to participate in the 70-year-old Japanese celebration life movement (picture). After the incident, Mao Zedong complained that he was not well made by Stalin and the progress of the signing talks was not smooth. On February 14, 1950, Mao Zedong signed the "Sino -Soviet Friendship Alliance Mutual Aid Treaty" in Moscow, and the two countries and the Soviet Union were ally.

The Soviet Union provided China, materials and personnel from trade, higher education, nuclear technology, and industry aspects. Aid to help China build a complete industrial system. The first "five - year plan" formulated by the Chinese government in 1953 was introduced by the help and planning of the Soviet Union. For "May 35" to move Taiwan, DW recently contacted the original book Zhuang Meiyuan to inquire about his views. She said she was busy with the creation of new script and had no time to be interviewed for the time being. However, when asked if she could present a presence in Taiwan, she replied that the social movements that occurred in Hong Kong after 2019 and everything that happened later made her understand the importance of citizens' quality, media, education, and record history.

Zhuang Meiyuan said that she hopes to pass to the audience: "As a Hong Konger, I deeply feel that I have lived in a social happiness with information opening and freedom of speech. But the most important thing is to take care, look at beautiful things, and look at justice. "

Zhong Boyuan, director of the Taiwan version of "May 35", told DW that how to present "Taiwan epitome" is the primary thinking when adaptation. He said that although the stage play tells the story of the June 4th story in China, when the actor speaks Taiwanese Mandarin or Aboriginal tone and Taiwanese comes out from time to time, the audience is likely to be illusory, "this is really telling a Taiwan story."

In addition, the Taiwanese version used 3 banned songs and Sunflower Xueyun songs "The Island Tiantu" during the martial arts period of Taiwan. It is transitional justice, and there is still a long way to go. "

Zhong Boyuan said that Taiwan now naturally enjoys democracy and diversification or freedom, but sometimes it may be forgotten, "How to make everyone know that it is not easy, or in a free situation, how to avoid the next time when they are oppressed. Only to do something. In fact, I think it is the greatest significance reflected in this work. "

Qiu Yizheng, president of the International Territory Organization, said that he hopes to use stage dramas to make Taiwanese audiences better understand June 4th and pay attention to the current situation of human rights in China and Hong Kong.

Director Zhong Boyuan (first from left) said how to present "Taiwan epitome" is the primary thinking when adaptation.

Scholars: Memory erase is not easyLin Zonghong, a researcher at the Taiwan Institute of Technology and Director of the Contemporary China Research Center of Tsinghua University in Taiwan, told DW that the June 4th incident itself was "the struggle between memory and forgetfulness." When the June 4th memory of Hong Kong was suppressed, overseas Hong Kong people were continuing this common memory in various ways in Taiwan and transformed into a symbol against Beijing's totalitarian.

Wu Ruiren, an associate researcher at the Taiwan Central Research Institute who studies nationalism, also believes that although the public memory of June 4 in Hong Kong is disappearing, "this disappearance does not mean that memory is really erased because memory is a delicate thing."

For example, "Hong Kong is now very similar to Taiwan in the 228 era, and has experienced a very serious, whether it is physical physical or mental slaughter." The 228 incident was strictly prohibited from talking in the martial arts era of Taiwan, but it was passed down by folk mouth, not only did not disappear, but more ingrained; Hong Kong people were highly global ethnic groups. Taiwan is better. "It is not so easy to erase and identify the memory."

Wu Ruiren believes that the people of overseas Hong Kong people commemorate the June 4th is a practice of preserving the traditional memory and identity of the Hong Kong nation. "This is a long struggle that has just begun."

Hong Kong "June 4 Memory" transplant Taiwan?

But compared with Hong Kong, Taiwan is generally colder for June 4th. Can the June 4th memory of Hong Kong transplant Taiwan? Wu Ruiren believes that it is not easy objectively. He explained that this was because the significance of June 4 in Hong Kong and Taiwan was completely different.

Wu Ruiren pointed out that in the hearts of the Hong Kong democratic school that claimed to return to democracy in June 4th, it inspired a stronger sense of responsibility for Chinese democracy. It was not until the umbrella movement and anti -repair campaign, and the young local generation re - defined the meaning of June 4th. However, the process of democratization in Taiwan has always been rooted in the local area. The local factions have regarded June 4 as "other countries' affairs". Taiwanese who commemorate June 4th also start from the position of Chinese nationalism. Universal human rights value.

In addition, Wu Ruiren continued to point out that Taiwan was very good Hong Kong a few years ago, but after the outbreak of the Ukrainian war, because it was worried that similar conflicts might happen to Taiwan, and isolationism became more obvious. Cooling "," This is why I don't think Taiwan can take it to take over or transplant. "

However, Wu Ruiren emphasized that Taiwan has its own history and memory. The current geopolitical crisis will also give June 4th to commemorate the new meaning, such as democratic output or co - resistance. He believes that the so -called transplantation "the growing things must be different, including what has been in Hong Kong in the past, but it also includes things in our Taiwan ... Finally, a new thing that is combined together."

Taiwan scholar Lin Zonghong also pointed out that although Taiwan has no way to fully carry the collective memory of Hong Kong people, it may not be as lively as the June 4th Memorial event in Hong Kong in the past, but it provides at least one commemorative occasion.

"Some people holding different historical memories can start a dialogue here, and then re -create a new, more diverse common memory ... it must not be a simple transplant, or put the past ones The drama will repeat it again -every time the play is restarted, it will become a new life. "

In this regard, Lieminghui believes that Hong Kong and Taiwan experience different experiences and can understand the different reactions of the two places to the June 4th. However, she pointed out that art and drama are a good breakthrough form, which can have a deeper connection with the locals. "May 35" is welcomed in Taiwan this time, not necessarily because the audience is interested in June 4th, but this is also a deeply infectious family story. She said that she will continue to do "May 35" in the future, hoping to connect more people around the world.

"I don't return to Hong Kong, because this is a high risk that I do now, and I think this is a price. If you choose to return to Hong Kong, you may have the opportunity to be arrested and detained .. So I decided to decide If you don't return to Hong Kong, I will continue to do "May 35", "she said.

According to Agence France -Presse, after Biden signed the "Fiscal Responsibility Act OF2023" today, the bill officially became a law. The bill can extend government borrowing rights to 2024, while reducing federal expenses.

Biden also gave a speech to the American people from an oval office earlier. He mentioned that after several weeks of debate, Congress finally passed the debt -limited bill, saving the country from "economic collapse."

Beiden was sitting behind the historic "ResoluTedESK" and told the people through the golden period of time that the deadlock between the Democratic Party and the Republican Party was a kind of compromise that "no one was completely satisfied". Essence

He emphasized: "We avoid the economic crisis and economic collapse ... There is no higher risk than this."

The U.S. Treasury has previously warned that if the debt limit problem has not been resolved on the 5th of this month, the US $ 31 trillion debt in the United States may breach contract. The US debt default may cause market panic, a large number of unemployment and economic recession, affecting the world.

However, although the bill passed in time, the reputation of the US economy was still hit. The International Credit Institution "FITCH" said today that although the United States has passed the debt limit bill, it still leaves the US AAA credit evaluation on negative observation lists temporarily.

On June 12th, Noeleen Heyzer, a special envoy of the United Nations (UN), said that she met with an exile national unity government foreign minister Zin Mar Aung.

Haize warned: "In the absence of inclusive political dialogue and not allowing citizens to exercise their rights freely, the election proposed by the military may worsen the violence."

Haize said that any dialogue should focus on people who are affected by conflicts, including women and youths.

In February 2021, the Myanmar military was unprecedentedly pointed out in the 2020 election fraud to overthrow the election government led by the democratic leader Aung San Suu Kyi. Since then, Myanmar has been turbulent.

After Messi from Argentina, after leaving the Spanish Class A Football League (La Liga) two years ago, FC Barcelona was signed by the French Class A Football League (LIGUE1) Paris St. Jendan. It is a pity that the UEFA Champions League (UEFA Champions Cup) is unfortunately violated.

Last season, St. Jendran, Paris, lost to Real Madrid in the Champions League Cup 16. Two weeks ago, he defeated the top 16 of the Champions League to the German Football League (Bundesliga) Bayern Munich (FC Bayern Munich).

Messi, who has won the Ballon D'O or the highest honor of the football at 7 degrees, is estimated to be 30 million euros (about NT $ 1 billion) in the annual salary of Saint Jendran in Paris.

In December last year, Messi led Argentina to defeat France in the Cada World Cup.

Messi has played 74 games for Paris Saint Jendran so far and scored 32 goals, but he will still be booed by some fans at home.

Messi had previously missed the drill and went to Saudi Arabia to fulfill his obligation to perform as a tourist ambassador, which further worsened his relationship with Saint Jendran in Paris.

He was then forbidden for one week by St. Jendran, Paris, and since then he was hopeless to sign the New Testament with St. Jendran, Paris.

Barcelona, who played most of Messi's career, hopes that he can "return to the nest", but this possibility has continued to decrease in recent weeks.

On the contrary, Saudi Arabia may be his next place.

According to reports, Inter Miami CF also wants to bring Messi to Major League Soccer (MLS).

(Voice of Germany) The Japanese government announced specific measures on Thursday (June 2) to suppress the decline in birth rate by increasing financial support for children's families.

The Japanese government said it will reverse this trend of about 3.5 trillion yen (about $ 25 billion or 23.5 billion euros) per year. Although the decline in birth rate has affected many developed countries, it is particularly serious in Japan.

From birth to two years old, parents will have the right to obtain allowances of about 15,000 yen (about $ 107) per month. Children over 3 years old will get 10,000 yen, and the age coverage will be expanded to high school.

According to the draft policy, the state will no longer use household income as the standard for issuing parenting allowances. The government also plans to open a childcare or day care center for children, even if their parents do not work.

Starting from fiscal 2025, the Japanese government will also increase childcare fake benefits. Even if both parents are reconciled, the disposable income of the family will remain unchanged for up to four weeks.

These measures also include increasing paid parenting leave and subsidies for fertility treatment.

Why do you want to introduce this "birth" policy?

Data show that in Japan with a population of 125 million, the number of births of the year last year was less than 800,000. It has reached a new decline in eight years earlier than expected.

Japanese Prime Minister Kishida proposed the plan in March, at the time he stated that he was proposing "the policy of declining birth rates in unprecedented scale" And seeking income of childcare.

He said to a group of ministers, experts and business leaders: "We will continue to take these measures to cope with the problem of decline in birth rate without asking the public to bear more burdens."

Japan is the second largest aging country in the world after Monaco, and its relatively strict immigration policy means that it is facing the problem of labor shortage.

A public opinion survey from Reuters shows that more than nine -tenth Japanese companies have a sense of crisis on accelerated fertility rates.

At the same time, the cost of taking care of the elderly is also soaring. The Kishida government was criticized for failing to rely on the sources of funds that reducing expenses and eager to improve the economy.

Sources familiar with the investigation told AFP that after two former embassies employees filed a complaint, France launched an investigation into Edwang and confirmed earlier media reports.

The French government urged Lebanon authorities to cancel Edwang's diplomatic exemption and let him accept trials.

The Lebanon Foreign Ministry said in a statement that it has decided that "the investigation committee led by the Secretary -General of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs ... Go to the Paris Embassy to ask the ambassador and listen to the statement of the ambassador."

The statement added that the investigation committee will meet with the French authorities to "clarify the content of the media report and the content that has not been conveyed to Lebanon Foreign Ministry through diplomatic channels."

Sources close to the investigation confirmed that the French news survey media MediaPart said that a 31 -year -old former employee appealed in June 2022, saying that she was sexually assaulted in the private apartment of the ambassador in May 2020.

According to the complaint, she has something to do with the ambassador, and the ambassador to her physical and mental violence and humiliation every day.

Another complaint was a 28 -year -old woman who complained in February last year that she was attacked by her body after refusing to sex.

Genetic technology -The long -lasting development of grain production

Description: Around genetic food, there are various uneasy rumors. But in fact, with the continuous improvement of genetically modified technology, more and more experts believe that persistent food production has gained important and safe methods.

(Voice of Germany) For environmental protection, food production is simply a disaster. According to the "World Database" of the Internet magazine, agricultural production should not only be responsible for the quarter of the carbon dioxide emissions of the atmosphere, but also the most important persecution of biodiversity.

While the environment is destroyed, the global population is also growing.

The United Nations predicts that in 2057, the global population will reach 10 billion. So the question is, how can we increase the grain output by 50%?

Can you reduce the serious consequences of losing the diversity of biological diversity as much as possible? Is genetic technology the key to solving this problem?

Matingaim, the director of the Food Economic Expert and Director of the Development Research Center of Bonn University, said: "We have now realized that expanding the area of grain planting is the culprit that causes climate change and harmful biodiversity. That is to say, in order to protect the environment, We must plant grain planting as much as possible. "

How can I feed 10 billion people?

Kaim said that in general, if you want to increase the output of food under the premise of protecting the environment, we must pay attention to two points: "One is that we must change the diet and pay attention to the durability of food consumption. Create less garbage and eat less meat. The second is that we need better technology to launch more favorable environmental protection agricultural production methods. "

On the one hand, we must change the way to produce food. For example, reduce consumption from the protein and nutrition of animals. But this is not enough to solve the problem. Kaim and other experts believe that genetically modified technology will become an important foundation for continuous food production.

"Everyone hopes to get the highest output on the smallest area, and it cannot use pesticides and pesticides too much. Is it a good thing? "

What is genetically modified food?

After the biological genes are changed, their characteristics will also change. Through the transformation of crop genes, not only will the yield increase, but also the resistance to pests and pests will also be improved. It can also tolerate drought and frost, and may also allow crops to provide more nutritional components.

In addition, crops can be optimized to reduce carbon dioxide emissions, thereby improving the sustainability of agricultural production. Although the popularity of genetically modified technology is getting higher and higher, the planting area of genetically modified food only accounts for 10 % of the total area of arable land.

Replanet is a non -governmental organization alliance dedicated to stop climate change and protect biological diversity with scientific means. The spokesman of the alliance DavidSpencer said to Germany: "GMI is actually a common technology in the process of plant culture. The hybridization technology used for thousands of years has been very similar. In fact, its technical means have become more exquisite, so that we can change plants faster and more accurately. "

Flood disasters are one of the natural enemies of rice planting.

GM technology was first used in agricultural production in the United States in 1994. After modification of tomato genes, its maturity period became slow, and the storage period was extended. Since then, genetically modified technology has also been allowed to be put in soybean, barley and rice planting. At the same time, genetically modified bacteria also appeared, which can produce more protein.

Indian scientists have developed SUB1 -resistant rice, which greatly improves the ability of this rice to fight flood disasters. Flood disasters are the main problems of rice planting areas in northern India and Bangladesh, and with the changes in climate, flood disasters have become more serious and frequent. At present, 6 million farmers in the region are planting SUB1 to flooded rice.

The so -called golden rice is to improve the vitamin A content in rice through genetically modified technology to cope with the shortage of vitamin A in the Asian -African region.

Discussion caused by genetic technology

There are still many people who have doubts about genetically modified technology. A poll in 2020 shows that half of the respondents from more than 20 countries skeptical of the safety of genetically modified food.

Thirty years ago, when genetic technology had just appeared, even in the academic circle, some people doubted the safety of genetically modified foods Essence But this situation has changed today.

Rhodes made analysts of South African Biological Safety Organizations in in - depth research on the safety of genetically modified foods. He said: "We already have thirty years of experience and data. These data tell us that in terms of consumption, genetically modified foods are very safe and have no harm to the environment."

Roders believes that now in any country, the use of genetically modified technology needs to obtain government approval. "After being approved by planting and commercial operations, it also needs a long stage of research and development and experimental stage."

Mengshan has broken the reputation of genetically modified food

Kaim said that in discussions involving genetically modified technology, people often mix genetically modified technology with corporate industrialized planting. The bad effects caused by Mengshan are still shrouded in the entire industry. "Some people are worried that companies such as Mengshan will continue to promote a large amount of vicious agricultural production models that use pesticides and a single planting, and buy seeds to farmers at high prices." Kaim said that the above issues are more manifested in related technologies. Supervision, not genetically modified technology itself.

Due to the serious use of pesticides, Mengshan made the entire industrial crop planting industry ashamed.

"Kaim said:" A small number of enterprises dominated industrialized agricultural production, this model itself is a mistake. But this has nothing to do with the genetically modified technology itself. Forbidden genetically modified organisms are like drug smuggling and pornography, so it is forbidden to prohibit The Internet is the same. "

A total of 1 month ago, the first campus attack case in Serbia had the history of the country. Nine of the 13 -year -old suspects were primary school children. The next day, another 21 -year -old man shot and attacked in the suburbs of Belgra, causing 8 people to be killed.

Today's rally is the fifth protest of the past month.

Agence France -Presse reported that the "Serbia Anti -Violence" protest was the largest demonstration of demonstrations in more than 20 years, and the large -scale protests of the year eventually led to the steps of strong man Slobodan Milosevic.

The anger of the demonstration of the demonstration of the ruling party broke out, stating that the government and its control of the media incite the culture of violence.

Bojana Popovic told AFP during the rally, "I protested here for all of us, especially for my children."

This week's protests were planned by a number of pro -European opposition parties. The original schedule was held yesterday. However, after the extremely right -wing group announced that they would also attend the event, the event was prolonged to the appearance of today.

For some TV channels that publicize violent content, demonstrators demanded that the government has revoked its broadcast license; and some of the pro -government newspapers who provoked nervous government for disagreement, demonstrators also demanded ban. In addition, they also demanded that the Minister of the Interior and the Commissioner of the Intelligence Department resigned.

At first, the demonstration rally was calm, but after the president and his allies strongly refuted demonstration demands, and laughed at the rally, abused people who went to the streets, the peaceful rally evolved into a comprehensive anti -government protest.

Critics have been accusing the Serbian President Aleksandar Vucic for many years, relying on autocracy, making oppositions chaotic, and letting the media and national institutions in his control.

Wugic scolded the protest as a "political" gimmick. He also spread the conspiracy theory, pointing directly at the planning of foreign forces to intervene in related assemblies.

The opposition has made some requirements, hoping to set up a transitional government before the new election; 53 -year -old Wutic has rejected the request and said that "as long as I am still alive," this will not happen.

Description: June 4, 2023 was the 34th anniversary of the "June 4th Incident". The Chinese Democratic Games that took place in 1989 finally ended with bloody suppression. This once resonated with freedom and democracy in Taiwan, but many years have passed, the CCP's centralized rule has become more stable, and Taiwan has continued to deepen democracy and move towards different roads. Even so, Zeng Zhihao, a Hong Kong media who lived in Taiwan, screamed that Taiwanese could not pay attention to June 4th.

On the day of the 34th anniversary of the June 4th, Taiwan President Tsai Ing-wen Facebook wrote: "We look forward to it, one day, young friends in China can sing freely. When creating expressions, there is only enthusiasm and worry."

(Voice of Germany Chinese) June 4, 1989 How long has it been? I do n't have a good mathematics. I may have to use a computer for a few years? Perhaps this, 89 June 4 has gone to a year, that is, Hong Kong has no years in June 4th.

Hong Kong Victoria Garden is not without June 4 rally Hong Kong citizens also did not have the freedom of chartering at the theater that night, and the Hong Kong Theater has no room for the purpose of the June 4th drama. By the way, the Democratic Statue has long been thrown like Hong Kong's "democracy". In June 4th in 1989, it was such a long time that he was still commemorating June 4th yesterday. Today, he also became the object of commemorative.

In the era of Great Immigration, Chinese people with June 4th Memory And Hong Kong people are scattered, some candlelights also spread all over the world , But in the face of the biggest challenge, I do n't know how to discuss June 4th.

The Taiwanese have their own suffering 228 disaster. They do not agree with the Taiwanese in China. They cannot participate in the June 4th rally with "mourning dead compatriots". Ukraine issues that are occurring are not possible to occupy the layout of Taiwanese every day, let alone the history of 1989?

So why, do Taiwanese pay attention to a tragedy in Beijing that happened many years ago?

The answer is simple: because the regime that created this slaughter tragedy still exists, and it is quite close to Taiwan. Many Taiwanese do not know this history, or they do not pay enough attention to this past. This is lively, we are from evil.

Under the force of the Communist Party of China, the Taiwanese have a strange thought: Don't stimulate the CCP, communicate frankly, in exchange for prosperity and peace.

And the specific "don't stimulate the CCP", including not to go too close to the United States, do not have too many military purchase, do not increase service periods. It seems that as long as these "non -exciting" actions are done, the CCP can get along well with Taiwan, and even some people even have someone. There may be fantasy: "It's good to be unified like this."

I will ask them to take a look at the history of June 4th. At that time, the students in Tiananmen did not go too close to the United States, did not buy military, and did not receive military training, but in the end they still got "force suppression."

Therefore, Taiwanese people must understand that the so -called "don't stimulate the Communist Party of China" is actually equivalent to not stimulating a person who is a G point. You can't do it.

One anniversary commemorative

On June 4, 1990, the people of Hong Kong took the streets for the first time to commemorate the first anniversary of the Tiananmen Massacre. From this year, the Hong Kong Federation will organize large -scale mourning activities each year. As the democratic movement in 1989 was a taboo topic in mainland China, Hong Kong gradually became the center of various types of memories related to June 4th.

Since 1990, on the evening of June 4, the Victoria Park in Hong Kong has held a candlelight party to mourn the June 4th death and express freedom of democracy. The number of participants is tens of thousands, as many as 100,000 people (according to the number of the organization's branch association, generally higher than the public announced the number), it is the world's largest June 4th commemorative event. The old man of Tiananmen

In 2013, the Taipei people held a candlelight party to commemorate June 4th and support the Nobel Peace Prize winner Liu Xiaobo in the prison. Liu Xiaobo is one of the representatives of the 89 Democratic movement, and together with Zhou Ru, Gao Xin, and Hou Dejian, he became "the four gentlemen of Tiananmen".

Taipei

On the 30th anniversary of June 4th, Taipei held a special commemorative event. Earlier, the inflatable "tank man" art device was built by Taiwanese artist Shake in front of the Taipei Zhongzheng Memorial Hall. Democrats such as Wang Dan and Zhou Fengsuo who experienced June 4th attended the present.

Three places on both sides of the strait

Taiwan's June 4th commemorative activities are far less than Hong Kong in scale and history, but in recent years, they have received more attention. In 2020, despite the impact of the epidemic, more than 3,000 people still participated in the candlelight mourning party in Taipei. As Hong Kong and Macau banned the June 4 rally on the grounds of prevention of epidemic prevention this year, Taiwan became the only place for three places on both sides of the strait to commemorate June 4th.

June 4th Memorial Hall

The June Fourth Memorial Hall of Hong Kong has been temporarily located in Jiulong since 2012, and has moved to urban universities and Tsim Sha Tsui. It has been repeatedly settled during the new hall site and was forced to close it many times. In 2018, the Branch Federation will purchase real estate in Mong Kok as the new site, and re-opened the museum in April 2019. After the renovation of the rest of the museum in April 2021, it was reopened at the end of May, but after a few days, it was closed again by the authorities on the grounds of "incomplete licenses".

Rebellion under the epidemic

In 2020 under the new crown epidemic, the authorities have not approved the June 4th rally for the first time in 31 years due to epidemic prevention and restrictions. However, tens of thousands of Hong Kong people still came to Victoria Park to burn the candle.

Hong Kong and Taiwan used to commemorate June 4th

again banned again

In 2021, the Hong Kong authorities banned the June 4th Memorial Party again. After the Hong Kong National Security Law came into effect a year ago, the space and free space for Hong Kong society were further squeezed. At the same time, Macau's folk June 4th commemorative activities have been banned for the second consecutive year.

The June 4th students demanded that the "anti -officials, anti -corruption, anti -corruption" of the specific practice, did not shout the slogan of "down" and "step down" to the leaders; "Li Peng stepped down" was in May. On the 20th, the State Council issued a "martial law order" that the student movement was "severe turmoil" before the slogan of the students shouted.

In other words, student rally can already stimulate the CCP's use of force. It can be seen that the CCP has such a DNA that solves the problem by force.

The Taiwanese face this kind of Hulk (Hulk) who is angry at any time. If you still think that the initiative is in his own hands, as long as he obediently obedient, he can enjoy peace. It is too naive. It is provocative with the United States, and it is also provocative to put forward reform requirements to the regime. Today, Taiwanese people can do any citizen's actions that can do on Kaigaland Avenue, provoking Beijing. Therefore, the history of June 4th clearly informed that the Communist Party's force would not be able to use military aircraft missiles, or it was a tank machine gun. The nature is consistent.

Taiwanese can ask Jiang Wanan to apologize repeatedly for the 228 incident, but Tiananmen's mother, not to mention that Xi Jinping apologized, but hoped that the family members of Tiananmen to tell their sorrows and suffering freely, and it was not allowed.

The biggest revelation of June 4th is to show the officials of the officials.

Zhao Ziyang sympathized with the students and was placed under house arrest; Li Peng was tough and martial arts, and was called "comrades" by the party after his death. In the past, the martial law of students in Beijing also moved to the low -end population of Beijing today, and this kind of cool officials were in charge afterwards. It can be seen that different forms of June Fourth, under the governance of the Communist Party of China, are still staged, and officials also understand that only if it is tough for the people can they pass the political barrier; then, there is really no reason for Taiwanese people to feel that they can become the exception of the "people". Essence

In June 4th this year, a candle was on the land in Taiwan, because there was one less place where the candle was ordered; under the candlelight, you would see more clearly, who is a friend and who is a threat.

The man named Li (middle) held a press conference on the 4th to accuse him of being sexually harassed by Wang Dan 9 years ago.

Li Dungeon was a political worker in Taiwan and was the assistant to the party member of Taipei City, Lin Liangjun. Accompanied by Lin Liangjun and the lawyer, he held a press conference in the Taipei City Council. In addition to stating the experience of the year, he also presented a screenshot of the conversation with Wang Dan's Facebook that year, as well as a photo of his residence in Wang Dan.

Li Duori pointed out that after being sexually harassed by Wang Dan, he was afraid of being in the United States and Wang Dan. Before Wang Dan ended on June 6, Taiwan time, he apologized to him publicly, otherwise he would formally report it.

On the same day, Wang Dan responded to Facebook: "Welcome to the statement to support the truth of finding things in a legal way."

On the 2nd, Li's reinforcements publicly accused Wang Dan publicly. On the evening of June 6, 2014, at a restaurant in the Flushing area in New York, Wang Dan "strong kiss" and "attempted rape" at the age of 20.

He wrote on Facebook that he had just begun to participate in the social movement that year. A party met with the assistant of Wang Dan and his Xie surname. "Wang Dan", a character who once appeared in my historical textbooks, and his experience of being singled in the past, made me very longing for him, just like seeing a celebrity. "Later, Wang Dan invited him to go together to go to work together Beauty "see the world."

In the restaurant room in Flushing, New York, when Wang Dan was alone, he hugged him from behind the window and kissed him. "For a while, I hadn't responded yet, and Wang Dan pushed me to the bed, continued to kiss, and tried to unlock my clothes. I was scared at the time that I didn't know how to react. Push away. "Li Aid wrote.

"Although Wang Dan really took off, but in the next week, I continued to face his words of words, sexual harassment jokes, and continued to suggest me, I hope I would sleep with him." After reacting to the assistant to Xie Xie, I only reacted to the assistant of Xie. Get "the teacher is joking, don't take it seriously, he is just playing" and other responses, and has not been assisted.

Li Aid said that after 9 years of tolerance, "Every time when Wang Dan, a June 4th, will be spoken, I feel very disgusting and uneasy. I am afraid of this person, I am afraid of hearing his voice, I am afraid of seeing him. Look. "

The accused showed a screenshot of the dialogue with Wang Dan on the 4th, saying that Wang Dan issued a clear invitation to him to the United States; he also showed the photos that were said at Wang Dan's residence and compared with other public photos.

Wang Dan: There is no existence of sexual show

After Li's reinforcements accused, Wang Dan, who is currently in New York, posted a 3 -point response on Facebook on the 3rd. He wrote: "First, what the author said does not exist at all. Second, the above has been clearly explained. I still have a lot of things to be busy and I will not respond. Third , My political activities will not be affected, and continue to advance. Today, the "June 4th Memorial Hall" officially opened, please pay more attention. Thank you. "

Wang Dan also pointed out: "The author himself said that he specifically chose the time point of" June 4th ", and he particularly emphasized how the political circles are about how to me. This expression has actually explained the problem."

Wang Dan responded that he was questioned by public opinion that he failed to respond positively. He sent an article later on the same day, "I was surprised to find that many netizens still thought that I did not respond positively." He said, "The other party's allegations, my cognition and my cognition and my cognition and my cognition and my cognition and my cognition There is a huge gap in memory. In addition, there are many students who have interacted with me, and some may have not contacted for a long time. It is really difficult for me to respond further about their unilateral text description. "

In response to Wang Danying, he publicly disclosed the matter at the June 4th time. Do n't have intention, Li 's reinforcements responded to the media on the 4th that he did not dare to see Wang Dan's information at all in the past 9 years, and even did not know that Wang Dan on June 2nd day I will participate in [the opening of the June 4th Memorial Hall] in New York(<https://www.dw.com/zh/zh/六四紀念館紐約開幕-特設香港民運展區/a-65811714>)"The time for posting is a coincidence." I decided to speak up because of the recent appearance of many political workers in Taiwan society who came forward to accuse the sexual harassment incident and was encouraged.

Taiwan "#Metoo" storm

Taiwan has recently revealed that there are many sexual harassment allegations. First, the Democratic Progressive Party of the ruling party broke out of four internal sexual harassment cases, which caused widespread discussion on local public opinion. In response, Taiwan President Tsai Ing - wen publicly stated through Facebook on the 2nd, "As a former chairman of the party, I blame. I want to express the deepest apology to the victim's friends and the public."

In addition, the Chinese exile writer Beiling, who lived in Taiwan, was also accused of being sexually harassed by Jian Liying, a well -known writer in Taiwan and one of the Taiwanese dramas "candidates". Touch male sex organs, rubbing across the pants, etc.

In an interview with the Taiwan Central News Agency, Beiling said that he was accused of "this is completely a fabrication", saying that the other party "put what happened to others, or nothing happened to me." Keep your reputation right. "

In the announcement of Paris Saint Jendan's general expected announcement: "After two seasons in Paris, Messi's adventure in Saint Jendan in Paris will be prescribed after the 2022-23 season."

The team said that at the PSG home "Parc Des Princess" at home, the 35 - year -old Messi will play a key role.

After Messi from Argentina, after leaving the Spanish Class A Football League (La Liga) two years ago, FC Barcelona was signed by the French Class A Football League (LIGUE1) Paris St. Jendan. It is a pity that the UEFA Champions League (UEFA Champions Cup) is unfortunately violated.

Last season, St. Jendan, Paris, lost to Realmadrid in the Champions League Cup 16. Two weeks ago, he defeated the top 16 of the Champions League to the German Football League (Bundesliga) Bayern Munich (FC Bayern Munich).

Messi, who has won the Ballon D'O or the highest honor of the football at 7 degrees, is estimated to be 30 million euros (about NT $ 1 billion) in the annual salary of Saint Jendan in Paris.

In December last year, Messi led Argentina to defeat France in the Cada World Cup.

Messi has played 74 games for Paris Saint Jendan so far and scored 32 goals, but he will still be booed by some fans at home.

Messi had previously missed the drill and went to Saudi Arabia to fulfill his obligation to perform as a tourist ambassador, which further worsened his relationship with Saint Jendan in Paris.

He was then forbidden for one week by St. Jendan, Paris, and since then he was hopeless to sign the New Testament with St. Jendan, Paris.

Barcelona, who played most of Messi's career, hopes that he can "return to the nest", but this possibility has continued to decrease in recent weeks.

On the contrary, Saudi Arabia may be his next place.

According to reports, Inter Miami CF also wants to bring Messi to Major League Soccer (MLS).

There is a drone attack in Moscow, and Ukraine is not responsible for it (Voice of Germany) This is a spiral. As in the past few days, from Wednesday to Thursday night, Russia once again conducted a large -scale air strike on Kiev, and this time used missiles. It was reported that two women and a child died. The Belgrad region adjacent to Ukraine and Ukraine has reported the news that it was attacked again by firepower. It may be the "Russian Volunteer Legion" attack, which launched a operation from the Ukrainian territory. In addition, a Russian media said that a drone was shot down in the Camaraga region. The day before, a drone attack on Moscow and the surroundings became headlines around the world. Such drone attacks have appeared for nearly a year. The first is to target military and energy infrastructure, and the goal is not limited to the Ukraine region of Russia, including Crimea, but also includes Russia. One of the earliest attacks was a refinery in the Rostov area in June 2022. It is rare to attack in Russia. In December, the strategic Engels Air Force Base was attacked twice.

On May 3rd, the Kremlin said that he was attacked by the drone

Behind the drone attack on Moscow

Ukraine usually shows that it is not responsible for these attacks. At the same time, Russia launched an attack on Ukraine throughout the territory, which frequently launched attacks such as various weapons such as missiles and missiles. From the perspective of losses and casualties, the two could not be compared. However, in the past month, drone attacks that are not close to the border areas have increased. This is how the same thing?

Experts have different opinions. Gerhard Mangott, an expert in Russia in Austria, believes that Moscow's air strikes, the fire attacks in the Russian border area, and the "guerrillas" moved there -s he said the "Russian Liberty Legion" and " The Russian Volunteer Russian Volunteer Corps "guerrillas" are said to be a Russian citizen-there is a connection between the three.

Russian border area has been attacked in Ukraine and said it has nothing to do with this

Psychological tactics

Manste said to Germany: "Obviously, Wufang hopes to bring the fear of war to Russia. I want people there to feel that the country cannot protect them, whether in the border area or in Moscow." He It is believed that this is the illusion that the Kremlin is trying to create in Russia's society without war and everything.

Gustav Gressel, a military expert at the Berlin think tank European Foreign Relations Committee

Gustavgressel, a military expert at the European Foreign Relations Committee of the Berlin think tank, believes that it must distinguish the situation of drone attacks and Belgrad. He told Germany that the drone attack of Moscow was a psychological war in the war. Grace believes that the attacks in Belgrad and the border areas are related to the counterattack of Ukraine. He believes that Kiev wants to force Russia to strengthen troops in border areas, and for this reason, a part of the force must be removed from Ukraine. As for whether this will increase the advantages of Ukraine's counterattack, it will be clearer after a few weeks.

'S reaction to drone attack Moscow

The West responded cautiously to the new situation. On Wednesday, a German government spokesman said to Germany that international law allowed Ukraine to attack the Russian territory for self -defense, but he also added that Berlin opposed the use of weapons provided by Germany to Kiev for such operations. Ukraine's most important weapon provides a similar response to the United States. White House spokesman John Kirby said that he did not use American weapons during the attack on Moscow. He also emphasized that the United States does not support attacks on Russia.

Russia: Ukraine tries to assassinate Putin with drones

F16 is only used for deterrence?

Kiev hopes to obtain more weapons from the West, but some analysts believe that this is mainly a deterrent effect. At the recent G7 Summit of Japan, US President Biden said that Ukrainian President Zelenskyy promised that the F16 fighter that the country has always wanted to obtain will not be used to attack Russia. So far, Western partners have only decided to train Ukraine pilots, but have not decided to provide F16 fighters.

(Voice of Germany) from the representatives of 175 countries gathered at the headquarters of the UNESCO. It began a five -day densely negotiated from Monday (May 29), hoping to reach a global treaty against plastic pollution. As one of the members of the organization, Espenbarth Eide, the Norwegian climate and environmental minister, dilutes the appeal of strictly restricting plastic production, but said that the so -called "native plastic" production should be reduced.

Norway is one of the initiatives of the Global Environmental Protection Alliance "High AmbitionCoality". Driven by the alliance, more than 145 countries hope to reach an agreement to end plastic pollution by 2025. Ed told Germany that with the development of the circular economy, the market's demand for new plastics will decrease.

"We agree that we need to reduce the output of native plastic." Aide said, "Of course, the less developed the circular economy, the less native plastic that needs to be produced."

UN Environmental Planning Department, which presides over the negotiations(UNEP)A document was released before the meeting, which advocated that plastic waste will be reduced by 80%by 2040. However, people think that it has largely avoided production problems and focuses on the circular economy.

Environmental Organization warned that negotiations focus on the recycling of plastic, rather than reducing the production of plastic first. The environmental protection organization "Green and Peace" calls for reducing plastic production to 75%of the level of 2017, as most plastics made of fossil fuels are still very difficult.

"If we focus on the end of the pipeline, the end of the pipeline, that is, the recycling of plastics, said a lot of false solutions, such as chemical recycling, cement kiln, or will be concentrated in the pipeline. Waste transforming into energy, we will lock ourselves in some of the worst effects of climate change."

Minister of Climate and Environment, ESPEN BARTH EIDE

How serious is the problem of plastic pollution?

According to the United Nations Environmental Planning Department, plastic manufacturers produce about 460 million tons of plastic each year, of which a quarter eventually pollutes the earth, less than 10%of plastics are recycled, the rest are buried in the waste landfill or burned. Essence A 2022 study found that by 2060, plastic waste will be doubled and may have exceeded the security boundary of the earth.

Plastic pollution is almost ubiquitous on the earth. From the deepest part of the ocean and the highest point of the mountains, from the stomach and human organs of the sea birds, almost all plastic products based on fossil fuel can be found. Minister of Climate and Environmental Ed even found plastic and chemical additives in his own blood test results. Although the degree of plastic pollution on land has not been fully studied, but people know it accounts for 80%of marine pollution. Marine biologist Melaniebergmann, a marine biologist at the Alfred Worder Institute in Germany, found that her research in the Arctic Deep Sea was also affected by a large number of plastic fragments, so she began to study plastic pollution. Subsequently, the frozen plastic was found in her Arctic sea ice, algae, tiny plank, and deep sea sediment samples.

Nevertheless, fossil fuel companies such as Shell and ExMobil have increased their production efforts and invested billions of dollars to establish new plastic production plants to seek new markets for their products to resist the transformation of renewable energy.

"When we discuss reducing plastic pollution, they are building new factories. We are not even capable of monitoring the impact or extent of pollution," Bergman said.

A recent study found that only 20 petrochemical companies have produced more than half of the world's disposable plastic garbage.

U.S. and Saudi Arabia drag the hind legs on a plastic convention

At the 5th UN Environment Conference last year, participating in countries recognizing that plastic pollution was a serious environmental problem and agreed to formulate the Global Plastic Convention. However, in the convention's negotiations, there is still huge gap between the interests of all parties.

In order to be able to speak smoothly, many insiders were anonymously interviewed by Voice of Germany. They said that Saudi Arabia, the main oil production country, has always been the biggest opponent of the "Ambition Alliance" plan, and dragged back on procedures such as voting rules. The United States, China, and India are also considered to have little interest in the conventions of reaching a real "ambition."

American representatives were accused of influence by lobbying groups such as the American Chemistry Council (ACC) and focused on the recycling and limited control of plastic. The United States has also been criticized for its own countries that can decide its own contribution to reducing pollution.

Minister of Climate and Environmental Ed and many environmental protection organizations believe that it should be promulgated with a global convention with legal binding power.

Bjornbeler, an international coordinator of the Swedish international pollutant elimination network (IPEN), said that it is unfair to allow countries to decide their own pollution levels that are not as much as Latin America and Africa that do not produce plastic or chemicals.

Belle said: "Therefore, the climate problem model based on national decision-making (rather than the global rules with legal binding) will fail again, because you cannot really deal with global problems at the national level."

2040 End plastic pollution years ago?

Including Rwanda, Peru, EU member states, Australia, several island nations, and some African and Latin American countries, the ambition alliance hopes to take comprehensive measures to end plastic pollution by 2040, and the problem with the climatic crisis and biology Diversity is losing linked.

In a press release, the organization also specifically pointed out the problem of accelerating disposable plastic production, saying that the world cannot cope with increasing amounts of waste. Ed in Norway said they hope to pay more attention to the manufacturing method of plastic to avoid using hazardous chemicals and make it easier to recover.

"Of course we don't want to get rid of plastic, because there will be many forms of plastic in the future," Ed told Germany.

Ed said the convention should pay attention to the "most likely to cause pollution plastic type, either because they contain toxic substances, or because they are used at one time, or because of their development methods"

Plastic production enterprise lobbyist

The Plastic Industry Association, which is said to be a statement issued by the entire plastic supply chain, defended the "basic nature" of the plastic in the statement issued by Germany, and expressed support for the recycling economy solution.

The organization expressed its support to increase the transparency of plastic materials, but it is particularly opposed to restricting production.

According to the information disclosed to Reuters, the lobbying group's American Chemistry Council (ACC) and its Brussels' "Plasticseurope" have been active behind the scenes to limit the scope of the agreement. They set up the "Plastic Pollution Action Commercial" alliance to advocate the benefits of plastic.

A group of groups composed of 174 non-governmental organizations, scientists, and other organizations, including Zhengu, Green Peace Organization, and International Environmental Law Center, published an open letter calling on the UN Environmental Planning Agency to restrict fossil fuel. The influence is believed that these lobbyists are vested interests reached by the destruction agreement.

The organization quoted the UN senior commissioner's officer office, "the interests of the plastic industry ... the fundamental and irreconcilable conflict between the human rights and policy interests affected by the plastic crisis."

Nazi sculpture: one of the two "step horses"

(Voice of Germany) Nazi artist Josef Thorak has created two "step horses" (German "Schreitende Pferde" for Hitler's New Empire Prime Minister's Palace in Berlin. Now these sculptures will be exhibited again in the Museum of Berlin (German: Zitadellensandau). One of the sculptures has been exhibited there for some time, and the second check before the exhibition.

According to the museum, on the opening day of the Monument on September 10, 2023, it will be exhibited for the first time with other problems with other problems.

From 1939 to 1943, the huge twins "strolled" entrusted by Hitler had been standing in the garden where the Nazi government was located. They are part of thousands of bronze works created for the Nazi regime. The purpose has evolved Berlin into the world's "Germanic" empire capital.

Another Nazi propaganda sculpture will be exhibited in the Shipan Dao Castle in Berlin

Who is Sorak?

Sorak(Josef Thorak)Born in Vienna on February 7, 1889, he studied at the Vienna Academy of Art and was transferred to the Berlin Academy of Art in 1915. After completing his studies, he established his sculptor status through a series of works, such as sculptures of the 4 -meter -tall Empire Bank Building Robe Robe in Western Germany.

His style has won countless commissioned tasks from the government. In 1934, he participated in the security monument and other projects of Ankara, Turkey, and he won international reputation. Since 1937, Sorak has become one of the sculptors favored by Nazi, and is ordered to create countless publicity sculptures to show the so -called power and glory of the Nazi regime.

During the peak of Sorack's career, Hitler and his regime were persecuted Jewish modern artists. They claimed that these artists created "degenerate art" and plundered the collection of Jewish art collectors. Sorak divorced his Jewish wife and got a reputation at the Munich Academy of Fine Arts. After the end of World War II, he continued to create without any trouble, until he died in 1952.

Why do you want to display Nazi art?

In 2015, the German police made a raid on an underground art trading market and re -discovered the "Step Horse" sculpture. Police have collected these works, including the sculptures of Hitler's two other favorite other artists Fritzklisch and Arno Breker.

These works may be planned to be sold in the black market because Nazi art is still taboo in the official market. Artist Historian Flmemerst(Christian Fuhrmeister)In 2015, the Voice of Germany told Germany, "There are some private collectors in Germany, the United States or Russia, and some people are always enthusiastic about such works."

According to the official website of Shipan Dao Castle, the castle of the former Renaissance has now become a space for the exhibition. The purpose of displaying these sculptures is to explain "how the power of various countries shaped the city landscape of Berlin." The series of commemorative sculptures created from 1849 to 1986 are mainly featured, covering the German Empire, Weima Republic, Nazi Germany and East Germany.

Nazi sculpture in public places in Germany **

The museum declares on its website that these sculptures are "witnesses of German history" and believe that these characteristic commemorative sculptures are "important symbols" of German history. "Important" this adjective may make some people feel uncomfortable, but the museum explains that its goal is to transform itself into the center of "toxic" monuments. The federal government also supports its acquisition of "step horses".

Earlier, the exhibition of Nazi art caused a strong protest Essence Last year, the Munich Painting Exhibition Hall was exhibited by another Nazi artist Zile(Adolf Ziegler)The paintings were criticized in an open letter. One of the most influential contemporary artists Barcelitz(Georg Baselitz)Call for removing it.

"Surprisingly, the Nazi propaganda can be performed in this dirty way in the Munich Museum," Barcelzi wrote last October. He said that the works of artists persecuted by the Nazis were hung beside the works of artists who are responsible for their persecution, which was "unbearable."

In fact , many Nazi propaganda sculptures are still retained in public places For example, the Nazi regime is the Berlin Olympic Stadium built in the 1936 Olympic Games. Before the 2006 World Cup, the stadium has always been used as a venue, and some activists have called for the dismantling of sculptures. However, Berlin refused this proposal on the grounds that demolition is equivalent to denied German history.

Will the global warming let the Panama canal break the air?

Description: To understand the economic cost of global warming, just look at the status of the Panama Canal. Due to the decrease in rainfall in Central America, the water level of the canal decreased. Experts are worried that ordinary consumers may eventually pay for it.

Through Panama Canal

(Voice of Germany Chinese) The Panama Canal is connected to the Atlantic and Pacific Ocean. Its creation is a huge gospel for global shipping. Before the Canal was completed, the ship had to bypass the southern end of South America-it was a longer and more dangerous route.

For centuries, the sea area around the corner of Heneng was a veritable ship cemetery. Thousands of sailors were killed there, and it was sinking there. But through the Panama Canal shorten the schedule of more than 13,000 kilometers, saving money and time in large quantities.

However, climate change seems to be threatening this route. Every time the canal's vessels open, millions of liters of fresh water flows into the sea, which reduces the water level in the canal. Subsequently, the new rainfall flowed into the supplementary water source. However, today residents, environmentalists, and meteorists have observed that climate change has led to a decrease in rainfall in Central America. This means that the amount of water in the canal is reduced. And if the freshwater flowing out of the canal vessels can no longer be supplemented, then large ships will become more and more difficult to pass.

What should I do if the rainfall decreases?

The reason why the Panama Canal is so much fresh water is that the ships must rise or fall by 26 meters through more than a dozen ship brakes.

According to data from Everstream, which represents the monitoring and evaluation of the supply chain on behalf of the international company, each ship requires about 200 million liters of water through the canal.

In recent months, the Panama Canal Administration, which is responsible for the operation of the Canal, has released strict water restrictions. The depth of the ship's water is the distance between the water line and the bottom of the ship. This measurement determines how much water does a ship need to sail safely. If a boat is loaded overweight, it will sink deeper, which will produce a larger water depth.

The normal operation of the canal is 15.24 meters. In early May, the authorities released the draft of the New Panama-type shipbuilding adjustment consultation based on the estimated water level-the technique refers to the size restrictions of the largest ship of the canal. Starting from May 24, the depth of water through the canal's largest ships must not exceed 13.56 meters. On May 30 a week later, it will be reduced to 13.4 meters again.

To make matters worse, startup analysts expect the situation throughout the spring will not improve. In fact, the shipping industry may become worse.

The Ever Given container ship is blocked by the Suez Canal

Herbot, a shipping company headquartered in Hamburg, Germany(Table-lloyd)Correct measures with other international consignors have taken the loading capacity of containers to reduce the water eating of the ship.

In order to compensate for the loss of income, Herbert will charge $ 500 surcharges on each container through the Panama Canal since June. Trade experts are worried that the interruption of the supply chain and longer transportation time will affect prices.

Not everyone is panic

Starmer(Vincent Stamer)It is easier to hold the water level of the Panama Canal and its possible consequences of global trade. The economist from the Institute of Economics of the Kiel World Economic Research told Germany: "At present, this is not the real key for the supply chain."

He believes that there will be no such thing as 2021: the Evergreen container ship is stuck, blocking the Suez Canal. "The importance of the Panama Canal to the global economy is not as good as the Suez Canal." Stammer explained.

In addition, 90% of the global trade through marine transportation has shown relatively obvious endurance in recent years. He said: "After the multiple pressures caused by ship congestion in recent years, the closure of the port, and the blockade, the supply chain has been significantly restored."

In 2022, the Rhein Rhine near Dusseldorf, Germany suffered a low water level

Global consequences of climate change

In recent years, in Europe, the problem of low water level has caused the authorities to have a headache. Last summer, the Rhine, an important inland shipping arteries, reached historical lows in the water level in some areas. This damages the delivery of shipping and the materials of the factory. It also caused the price of gasoline and heating oil to rise. This year, the snow shortage of the Alps may cause the same problem again.

The departments responsible for maritime navigation are considering adopting countermeasures for the Rhine, such as deepening the river in some places. Another more expensive solution is to build a dam to maintain or improve the water level in important waters.

For the Panama Canal, people are considering other solutions. They include water -saving sluice that can collect fresh water for reuse. To this end, the possibility of researching and developing and using other water sources near the canal. The construction of the reservoir and the seawater desalination plant is also considering. To this end, the possibility of developing and using other water sources near the canal is also considering the construction of reservoir and salt water dilute plants.

One of the 12 vessels in the Panama Canal

More alternative scheme

If all these countermeasures come too slowly and through the canal, will Europe be threatened by the closure of the Suez Canal to close the collapse?

"No, never," Stammer said affirmatively.

He said: "Only 2% of the German shipping trade flows to the Pacific coast of the American continent. The sea connection with the East Coast of the United States and the highway trade with neighboring European countries have played a greater role."

Before finding the long -term solution of the Panama Canal, the economist saw other methods to solve the problem of water shortage in Central America. "For shipping companies, reducing load is of course the simplest method. It is also possible to use smaller ships."

Stammer also saw other alternatives. "The transportation route from the Panama Canal to the east coast of the United States can be partially diverted through the Suez Canal through the Panama Canal." He said, "On the route between Europe and the West Coast of the United States, alternatives are not mature. The measures are combined with more use of air or land transportation through the United States. "

OPEC+Meeting Discussion to further reduce production to support oil prices

Description: (Agence France -Presse Vienna 3rd) The increasingly signs show that the oil -producing countries led by Saudi Arabia and Russia are considering supporting oil prices by further production reduction when they meet tomorrow.

The Organization of the Petroleum Export of Countries (OPEC) will negotiate with Russia's 10 oil -producing countries to review future output policies.

This physical meeting of Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and ONEC+Oil countries (OPEC+) will be held in Vienna tomorrow.

Analysts originally expected that OPEC+will maintain its current policy, but today there are signs that adhering to such policies may not be able to fully stabilize the oil market.

Several OPEC+members agreed in April that they voluntarily reduced production by more than 1 million barrels per day. This unexpected move has briefly supported the price, but it cannot bring a long -lasting price recovery.

Russia's invasion of Ukraine has subverted the global economy, and oil production countries are trying to respond to the decline in prices and the market violently fluctuating.

When most delegations arrived in the Austrian capital Vienna, they still kept their mouths, or declined to comment on possible policies.

For heavyweight members of Saudi Arabia and Russia, whether it will allow OPEC+to maintain its current output policy, or to further reduce output, analysts have different views.

Sources told AFP that the daily reduction of 700,000 to 1 million barrels per day is one of the options discussed; but emphasized that everything has not been determined.

(Voice of Germany in Chinese) Chinese Defense Minister Li Shangfu Sunday (June 4) spoke on a conference on the topic of "Chinese New Security Initiative" in Shangri -La dialogue in Singapore. Regarding Sino -US relations, Li Shangfu said, "If there is a fierce conflict between China and the United States, it will be an unbearable pain in the world."

Li Shangfu said that China believes that the great power should have a large country, and cannot provoke a camp confrontation for the moment. It should take into account the overall situation to exchange and cooperate to resolve differences and respond to the expectations of all countries. "The Sino -US system is different and the differences are large, but it does not prevent the two parties from seeking common ground while developing bilateral relations, nor does it prevent the two parties from deepening cooperation based on common interests. History has repeatedly proved that China and the United States are in good advantages."

He said that China has always sought to establish a new type of major power relationship with the United States. "But this requires the United States to come up with sincerity, consistent words and deeds, and act with China with actual actions to promote the relationship between the two armies and the two armies. Find the way to get along. "

Li Shangfu admits that in the past few years, Sino-US relations have hovered in the trough after establishing diplomatic relations. He also pointed out that "the reason for this difficult situation is clear."

Li Shangfu said that the world is wide enough, and it can fully develop the joint development of regions including China and the United States. "The three principles of respecting each other, living peace, and win-win cooperation are the correct ways to get along with China and the United States."

The day before Li Shangfu delivered a speech at the Shangri-La dialogue, US Secretary of Defense Austin Criticizing China to refuse to meet during the summit to meet the two countries' defense ministers Essence

Austin attacked Beijing's lack of military communication and said: "The more we talk about, the more we can avoid misunderstanding and misunderstanding that may lead to crisis or conflict."

US Secretary of Defense Austin criticized China to refuse dialogue

"Taiwan problem is the core of China's core interests"

U.S. -China relations are at a historical low on many issues, including espionage, trade tensions, restrictions on exports of semiconductor chips, and the Russian and Ukraine War. The most controversial and sensitive topics are the future of Taiwan and territorial disputes in the South China Sea.

Li Shangfu emphasized at the Shangri-La dialogue that "the issue of Taiwan is the core of China's core interests." "Taiwan is Taiwan in China. How to solve the problem of Taiwan is a matter of Chinese people. It is not allowed to interfere with any external forces."

He criticized the Democratic Progressive Party authorities as "进他他", and the external forces "made by Taiwan" are the greatest troublemakers to change the status quo of the Taiwan Strait.

Li Shangfu said, "China is willing to fight for peace and unity with the greatest sincerity and maximum efforts, but never promise to give up the use of force." He also warned: "If someone dares to split Taiwan out of China, the Chinese army will not hesitate, not afraid of any opponent, no matter how much the price pays, it will resolutely safeguard national sovereignty and territorial integrity."

Li Shangfu warns that promoting the Asia -Pacific NATO will only cause the Asia Pacific to fall into the vortex of tear, disputes and conflicts

Hidden warning of the United States

One day before, the US destroyer, USS Chung-Hoon and the Montreal (HMCSMONTREAL) of the Royal Navy of Canada across the Taiwan Strait. The U.S. Navy said a Chinese destroyer made a "unsafe" act. According to the exclusive video shot by Canada's "Global News", a Chinese warship accelerated to the Zhongyun, and it was only 150 yards and almost hit the US warships.

Shi Yi, a spokesman for the Eastern Theater of the Chinese People's Liberation Army, criticized the country on Saturday night that the country was "interested in creating incidents in the Taiwan Strait area, deliberately provoking risks, maliciously destroying the peace and stability of the region, and sending an error signal to the" Taiwan independence "forces."

The U.S. Indo -Pacific Command said that the US and Canadian warships are conducting routine operations in accordance with the freedom of navigation. Canadian Defense Secretary Anitaanand said that Canada will continue to sail within the scope allowed by international law, including the Taiwan Strait, and "the behavior of the region must act responsible."

When talking about the South China Sea issue, Li Shangfu did not name it criticized, "" Some countries and foreign countries "are in the name of navigation freedom, and the power of sailing hegemony. If you want to stir the South China Sea, we need to make a profit from it. "".

He said that China is similar to ASEAN, and the peoples of all countries are in their hands. "There are differences between the neighborhoods, and everyone is communicating and properly solving, but some foreign countries have provoked separation behind them. We must distinguish between interests and keep awake."

In his speech, Li Shangfu also mentioned that what the Asia -Pacific needs today is the big and inclusive cooperation, not the "small circle of the gangs". He also emphasized that "advancing the Asia -Pacific NATO will only cause the Asia -Pacific to fall into the vortex of tear, disputes and conflicts."

He criticized some countries to expand its military bases and exacerbates regional arms competitions.

Indian train accident: Why is the country's train often derailed?

Image adding text,

The accident on Friday killed at least 288 people, and more than 1,000 people were injured

India collided and derailed in the evening of Friday (June 2), which had killed at least 288 people and more than 1,000 injured. There are many questions about the exact reason for this fatal accident to be answered.

According to reports, two special express passenger trains and a row of freight trains occurred near a small railway station in Audisha, Eastern Audisha. One of the passenger trains hit a row of cargo trains, and the carriage flipped into the third rail, causing a row to derail a train. The preliminary report states that the accident was caused by the fault of the signal.

The truth behind the accident will only be revealed after a comprehensive investigation, but it once again trigger concerns about the safety of the Indian railway.

India's railway system is one of the world's largest. The national railway network exceeds 100,000 kilometers (62,000 miles), and the number of passengers per day is 25 million. Indian Minister of Railways Ashwin Vaishnaw said that a new railway was paved about 5,200 kilometers last year, and about 8,000 kilometers of railways was upgraded each year.

He was in a recent communication disclosed Most railways are upgraded to adapt to trains with a speed of 100 kilometers per hour. A considerable part of them will be upgraded to a speed of 130 kilometers per hour, and some are prepared for high-speed trains at a speed of 160 kilometers per hour.

This is obviously part of the government's intention to run a faster train intention nation -the real high-speed railway line is built separately, connecting the financial capital of Mumbai and Ahamada Bad.

However, a former railway officer Viveksahai told me that derailment is still "a headache on the railway." There are many reasons for the derailment of a train- "maybe the rail maintenance is not good, it may be a problem with the carriage, or it may be a mistake in driving operations."

Image source, reuters

Image adding text,

The Komand Express Train is derailed, turning over the neighboring rail, and was subsequently hit by another train closer.

A government in 2019-20 years Railway Safety Report It is found that 70% of the derailment of railway accidents has increased from 68% in the previous year. (Train fire and collision are ranked behind, accounting for 14% and 8% of the total of the total accidents).

Prime Minister Modi said the person in charge of the accident seriously punish the accident

The rescue operation of the train accident has ended, and officials said that the trapped and injured passengers had been rescued.

Prime Minister Modi visited the scene, saying that it was a "painful" incident.

He also said that guilty people were found in the accident would be "severe punishment."

This multi-train collision was described as the worst railway accident in India in this century. The current specific causes have not yet been clear.

The authorities have launched a comprehensive investigation on the incident. Officials of the railway authorities pointed out that the preliminary report stated that the accident may be caused by a signal failure.

According to the news, there are about 2,000 passengers on the two bus trains involved in the accident.

In the assessment year, 40 derailment accidents were counted, 33 times were passenger trains, and 7 times were freight trains. 17 of them are derailed due to the "defect" of the rails -may include the number of rails or settlement.

The report states that only 9 derailment accidents are due to the failure in the train -engine, carriage, car skin, etc.

The railway rails are made of metal. In summer and winter months, the temperature will be swollen and contracted due to temperature rising. They need to be maintained regularly -tightening loose parts, replacing pillow wood, and adding lubrication and adjustment to the transfer interface. This type of rail maintenance is done by artificial, hand -pushes, locomotives and tail vehicles.

The routine suggestion of the Indian railway is that the rail inspection vehicle carefully checks the geometric structure integrity of the track at least every three months to maintain the speed of 110 to 130 kilometers per hour.

Federal government auditors on derailment from April 2014 to March 2021 Report There are some disturbing discoveries:

There have been many discussions on the installation of anti -impact devices on the Indian train, but according to a railway official, the system currently only installed on two main lines -from Delhi to Kolkata, and from Delhi to Mumbai. As for how such a system can have a role in derailment or "strange" impact accident, it is unclear.

Image adding text,

In 2010, a row of passenger trains in West Bengal was derailed and collided with a row of freight trains, causing more than 150 people to die

In 2010, a row of passenger trains in West Bengal was derailed and collided with a freight train, causing more than 150 people to die. Investigators said that the Maoist rebels destroyed the rails, causing this column to be derailed from Calcore to Mumbai's passenger trains, and five of them were thrown on the track of another freight train. There are no signs that the accident on Friday has been deliberately destroyed.

The railway department pointed out that there were 34 "railway accidents that caused consequences" in 2021-22-collision, derailment, fire or train explosion, road cars and trains collided at the plane intersection, etc. many. The Hindus reported on May 31 that this type of accident rose to 48 years in 2022-23.

Report It is quite foresight that the railway authorities are concerned about the rise in the accident rate and have required their senior managers to "strictly evaluate the working time of the staff, especially the East Coast Railway and the Southeast Central Railway Department, and make urgent amendments." The accident on Friday night happened in the busy area of the East Coast Railway.

Description: (Agence France -Presse, Sydney, 4th) The Australian government announced today that the government plans to expand the remote "Macquarie Island Ocean Park" of the southeast sea to three times, and its protection area is almost equivalent to Spain.

Images: "[000000.png"]

According to this proposal, the existing area of "Macquarie Island Marinepark" will be expanded to 3 times to 475,465 square kilometers, which will be protected within this range.

The future scope of Macquarie Ocean Park is roughly comparable to the area of Spain or Cameroon, or it is larger than Vietnam and Japan.

Australia's Minister of Environment, Tanya Plibersek, said that the park is protected, which means that the district will "completely prohibit fishing, mining and other mining activities."

Macquarie is located between Australia and Antarctica. It is the homeland of Royal Penguins and Fur Seals (also known as sea dogs).

"Macquarie Island is a special place, a remote wildlife fairyland, and an important breeding place for millions of sea birds, seals and penguins."

Environmental protection organizations support this plan because they are worried that this area may become the underwater mining and non - permanent business fishing goals.

Many citizen groups held the 34th anniversary of the 64th Annmen incident in the Chiang Kai -shek Memorial Hall. Agence France -Presse Pictures

According to a report by the Taiwan Central News Agency on June 4, on the 34th anniversary of the Annmen incident in June 4th, many citizen groups such as the Chinese Democratic Academy Association of Taiwan held a mourning event in the Chiang Kai -shek Memorial Hall. This is also the implementation of the National Security Law of the Hong Kong District. After the Hong Kong Victoria Park mourn the candlelight no longer, Taiwan has become the only region in the three places in both sides of the strait to publicize the June 4th incident.

Feng Shaotian, the youth secretary -general of the Hong Kong Border City, said that the Candlelight Gala of Victoria Park in Hong Kong cannot be held again, and replaced it in advance to celebrate the "return to the motherland" in advance. Obviously, the Chinese authorities hope to use this to obliterate the June 4th memory, making people mistakenly think that June 4 is a "celebration" day. Feng Shaotian emphasized that although Hong Kong could not host the June 4 mourning activities, Taiwan can still hope that Taiwan can pass on this spirit, and at least Hong Kong people can participate online.

The report pointed out that the Victoria Park in Hong Kong has been unable to hold a candlelight party to mourn the June 4th for four consecutive years, and the last game stayed in 2019. Since then, the authorities have banned the mourning rally in June 4th on the grounds of the new crown epidemic.

The British Embassy then said through Twitter, "Within 20 minutes, the reviewer deleted the post we posted on Weibo. News reports from the most authoritative news institutions from the Communist Party of China were also reviewed." The text said that at the time, the editor of the People's Daily was obviously trying to attract the public's attention to the June 4th massacre, but the CCP's leadership immediately punished the editor of the newspaper, resulting in the then editor of the "People's Daily" editor -in -chief forced to be forced to be forced Go down, and another editor was sentenced to 4 years in prison.

The British Embassy in China pointed out that the incident on June 4, 1989 was still strictly reviewed in China, and the authorities even deleted the pictures reported by the party media themselves. This process locks the greenhouse gas, and the final product can be used as fertilizer or for the production of "green" concrete.

Experts say that although the biochar industry is still in its infancy, this technology provides a new method to remove carbon from the earth's atmosphere.

According to data from the UN Intergovernmental Climate Change Problem Group (IPCC), biological charcoal may be used to capture 2.6 billion metric tons of carbon dioxide each year.

But expanding its use is still a challenge.

Circular Carbon CEO Peik Stenlund told AFP in the biological carbon factory in Hamburg: "We are reverse the carbon cycle."

This factory is one of the largest factories in Europe. From the gray pipeline network of adjacent chocolate factories, it has collected the cocoa bean shell.

Biological charcoal can lock carbon dioxide in the shell.

Before the scientists who studied the fertile soil of the Amazon Basin in the 20th century re-discovered the biological carbon, the American Aboriginal people would take it as fertilizers.

Today, Hong Kong Victoria Garden commemorates this scene of June 4th (data picture: June 4, 2011)

(Voice of Germany Chinese website) Singapore's "Duan Media" published an article "Interview with Li Lifeng: Public June 4th Memorial disappeared Will memory break? ", Li Lifeng, a professor at the School of Journalism and Communication of the Chinese University of Hong Kong, said in an interview with reporters Li Huiyi and Fu Yuxin that they should be completely wiped away Hong Kong's June 4th Memory In fact, it is extremely difficult. Any society has the ability to keep a memory, even if it is small, retain the ability of memory, plus Hong Kong's international network and connection. In the past, it was a large scale, a memorial in the whole society. Now the atmosphere is different. It is no longer a DominantMemory, but as a group of actual groups, at least a lot of absolute Hong Kong people, even more than half of the Hong Kong people, still remember what he still remembers.

Li Lifeng believes that from an academic perspective, if there is no public lecture or action, it cannot even be called collective memory. Because collective memory does not mean that you remember, I remember it is called collective memory. In Hong Kong society, from 1990 to 2019, June 4th was a strong collective memory, because everyone really said that it occupied a very important position. Of course, it is difficult for Hong Kong's state to discuss one thing in a complete way. It commemorates the only thing that can be said to be exported. "The spirit of the June 4th will leave the hearts of everyone in different forms"

Taiwan "reported" published an article "June 4th, [Four Tongqiao is gone]"(<https://www.dw.com/zh/zh/六四前夕四通桥从中国地图应用程序消失/a-65816483>), The author Zhang Qiongyin said, reviewing the past, whether it was the June 4th incident, the Sitongqiao anti -learning incident, the white paper movement, or the Urumqi fire, the demolished" Urumqi Middle Road "road sign proved that the more the Chinese authorities used each other, The way to wipe out the historical behavior of these people's resistance to wipe out the people's resistance, the more indicating that the Chinese authorities are afraid of the people's resistance to the people, and they think that it is necessary to eliminate the memory of the group through the obscure and overbearing things. This kind of stupidity Instead, the behavior reminds the public that the deeds have happened here. It is also because of this that the June 4th incident can still deeply plant the people's hearts after the CCP government has continued to increase the control of various items over the years.

The article said that today, 34 years later, Hong Kong is also strictly forbidden to hold the June 4th mourning activities after the National Security Law and the counterparts. But the spirit of the June 4th still exists in Taiwan, the United States and the world. To this day, the CCP government has never announced the number of deaths who suppress the action. The June 4th spirit will leave the hearts of everyone in different forms, and whether the CCP authorities want to wipe out the bloody history that cannot be wiped out.

"The mourning and memorial of June 4th is a car"

The "crooked brain" in Washington published an article "The History of the 34th June 4th Memorial Interpretation of Taiwan: from "Blood Connection", "Chinese Human Rights "to" Fighting Degreal "", the author Ruta wrote how to interpret the June 4th Evening Party in Taiwan In fact, it is also a constant re-writing and delay of the right to interpretation. Reports in previous years show that in the June 4th Memorial, public opinion emphasizes "cross-strait compatriots' hand affairs", some people discuss "the necessity of anti-China Baozai", and some people mourn the historical pain of their respective nations- The meaning continuously spread outward.

The article quotes Lin Xinyi, a director of human rights connection between Tibet, saying that from Hong Kong's countermeasures and white paper movements, the June 4th Evening Festival will continue to grow new meaning. This is a good thing. When new discussions are constantly explained recently, it means that this resistance movement is still underway. As long as it is a participant, it will not want a movement to eventually become a "fault". Rather than let the June 4th symbol, we also hope that June 4th's mourning and commemoration is a formula. All newly joined groups should be a nutrients that resist -because every memory and experience they experience is real.

As a career nerd, I can't remember how many times others ask me, how do you think British Prime Minister Rich Sunak(Rishisunak)Passion for mathematics. I really don't know what to say. Sunak gave a speech that praised computing power in April, and I agreed with most of them. But there are not many signs that have specific actions with these beautiful words.

The problem is not only in Sunak's strangely obsessed with people to learn extra mathematical content when they are 17 years old, but the more urgent need is actually providing more and better mathematical teaching and support for young children. The problem is also the fundamental disconnection of words and policies. In the UK, mathematics teachers have a long -term shortage, and the actual salary of teachers has been reduced by about 10%between 2010 and 2022, and it may be further reduced in the future. How to help Sunak achieve his goals and make the British computing power higher? It is a mystery.

A new study by the Swedish research team found that high -fat and high -sugar diet can change the brain waves during deep sleep, which may lead to a decline in sleep quality.

Xinhua News Agency reported on Sunday (June 4) that researchers at the University of Uppsalauniversitet, the University of Sweden, recently published a research paper published in the American "Obesity" magazine that high -fat and high -sugar diet will lead to Delta at the stage of deep sleep. The wave ratio decreases and the intensity decreases, resulting in decline in sleep quality.

Deep sleep is very important for repairing the body and integrating memory. Humans' brain waves at the time of soberness are mainly Bettobo, which is high frequently. After entering the state of sleep, the low -frequency Deltobo gradually increases, and the proportion of the proportion reaches the highest in the deep sleep stage. The related parameters are closely related to the recovery of sleep.

The research team of the University of Upsara recruited a group of good healthy men to participate in the test. Volunteers were randomly divided into two groups, and high -fat high -sugar diet and low -fat and low -sugar diet solutions were implemented. The equipment sleeps in the laboratory all night.

The two diets are the same, but the nutritional structure is different. After about two months, the two groups of volunteers exchanged diet plans and repeated a round of tests.

Data show that a week's high -fat and high -sugar diet has no significant effect on sleep duration and stage, but it will change the brain wave characteristics of deep sleep phase. 11 of the 14 volunteers with complete brain waves have changed.

Researchers pointed out that fat and sugar may activate some molecular channels related to the degree of soberness, and the specific mechanism needs to be studied. Whether this phenomenon is applicable to other ages and gender, and the impact of long -term unhealthy diet and short -term effects, it is also necessary to further verify.

Maglida Marcos is from the Portuguese Democratic Party. He had previously held important positions at the EU Cultural Division and Communication Division of the EU Commission. Later, he returned to Portugal in 2015 and served as the State Secretary of European Affairs in Portuguese Prime Minister Antonio Costa Cabinet. After the 2019 European election, she was successfully elected and became a member of the European Parliament, and was a member of the European Parliament's delegation to China. She had her unique understanding and insight in Sino -European relations.

As a policy consultant of the former European Parliament, the author communicates with members of the European factions and countries in Europe after three years. We can deeply feel the cautiousness and sensitivity of members when talking about everything related to all issues related to China. There are many reasons behind this, but from the perspective of European perspective, the core problem comes from the outbreak of the Russian and Ukraine War. It is precisely because of this war at the European door that many Europeans feel that they have hit the "South Wall wall ", Thus a significant change in the attitude towards Russia and China. Although it seems that everything has been relieved as Germany, France, and Spain's heads and EU Council's chairman visit China. However, for the overall Sino - European relations, the war itself is still a topic that Central Europe cannot be around for a period of time. We can even say that the real substantial "recovery" between China and the European Europe will not really start until the dust of the war settled.

The current scene can be said to have a very sharp contrast between the scenes between China and the European Europe three years ago and the Heat. At present, many European Zhihua factions have stated that due to the pressure of public opinion, the pressure of publicly expressed opinions is increasing. Therefore, in many people's eyes, only "tough" or "stronger" can be chosen. Because of this, in such an environment, the China -Europe communication channel established by Xinfu Think Tank's "Global Dialogue" column in the British "Financial Times" is precious. The foundation of cooperation between China and the European Europe also adds more confidence to the restoration of China -Europe business, environment, academics and other social cooperation.

The following is the access content:

Song Xin : Early, Maglida Marcos. Very honored to interview you on behalf of the British "Financial Times" on the European Parliament of Brussels. My pleasure. Thank you for your time. Next I want to discuss with you global geopolitical shifts and its long -term impact on Sino -European relations and the economic challenges we are facing now. My first question is, how do you look at the recent global geopolitical transformation? How do you think it will affect Sino -European relations?

Member of Macos : Thank you very much for giving me this opportunity. This is a key issue about the future. Of course, we need to review two years ago, even two and a half years earlier to understand the differences in the world. This means that after the Soviet Union end; we created a multi -polarized world. What we need to do is to have a similar multi -world, even if it is different from the past, it is at least the same level. During the Soviet period, we had a bipolar world, and we could not risk having a single world. This is why the EU has multilateral relations, and we think it is very important to build a multi -pole world. In other words, only when all partners respect the international rules and the principles of the United Nations Charter, all this is possible. This is the core of our strategy, our main position. For example, if the EU says it needs to establish strategic autonomy, then from an economic perspective, the so -called autonomy is a strategic autonomy, but from a security perspective, autonomy is also (maintenance) peace. China is a member of the Permanent Committee of the UN Security Council. Our (Central Europe) needs to respect the rules of the United Nations, and we (Central Europe) also has a common ambition. This is why we need to work together. For example, in the "Paris Agreement", we have strong rules for World Trade Organization in the "Paris Agreement", in terms of health, and in trade relations, but sometimes they are not respected. Therefore, this is our position, and China must be an important partner of the EU.

Song Xin : How do you understand the economic challenges of the EU currently facing? How should the EU deal with these economic problems?

Member of Macos : I think that after the new crisis, the European Union understands: We need to have a response from the European Union and a European Union, not a different strategy of member states. Therefore, we have a common answer of the European Union. We have created a European fund, the next -generation EU to fund the economic recovery and funding economy. We are doing this. This means that the European Union is very dedicated to climate transformation, digital transformation, and promoting the operation of some social mechanisms, and strengthening public services, creating a social market economy, providing and promoting economic growth, promoting employment, and promoting social equality. We do not want someone to anyone So it is behind.

We need to create a new economic environment, respect and integrate everyone. In a cohesive society, this requires a lot of challenges. People are usually paying attention to more investment in innovation and green industries. Promoting a strategic economy is the key to EU work. But we know that we are not alone worldwide. The EU has established different levels of relationships with different countries. It is very important that we cannot rely on one country in terms of raw materials, semiconductors, and supply chains. We need a stronger strategic autonomy. This does not mean who is isolated. It only means that we will establish better cooperative relationships with fair partners.

Song Xin : Many Chinese companies are now very interested in the European market. They want to invest here and develop their respective European territory. They may have been operating in Europe for some time. Do you have any suggestions for these companies who want to come or have come here?

Member of Macos : I can't tell them how they should act. However, the relationship between us and Chinese enterprises is first, Europe is an open market. This is not the case in China. China is still a fairly closed market. Chinese companies in Europe are in a regular market environment. This is not the case for European companies in China. We need more equivalent. This is the equivalent of European companies in Chinese or Chinese companies in Europe.

My second point is that we (Central Europe) is a different society and different economies. As you know, in Europe, we have a high level of social, economic, environmental, and gender balance standards. These are the European standards that companies need to respect in European production. All companies operating in Europe must respect it. We must create fair conditions for competition between Europe and China. We must always remember that these standards are very important for the European economy.

Song Xin : What suggestions do you have to organize Chinese researchers or research institutions who want to participate in the European exchange project? Is Europe still interested in continuing these exchange projects?

Song Xin : Thank you for your point. Thank you for taking the time to communicate with us.

Member of Macos : Thank you very much.

"We can't do big demolition and construction because of urban renewal." On the afternoon of March 7, the Minister of Housing and Urban -Rural Development said in an interview with reporters this year. A era is coming to an end.

In the 20th year of the 21st century when the real estate economy was singing, the development of almost all cities in China was accompanied by land acquisition, demolition, compensation and reconstruction. It is the most prominent logo in Chinese cities in the past few decades. In 2009, some media proposed the word "disassembly" that could be seen everywhere on the outer wall of the building at the time as the Chinese character this year.

Nowadays, the era of large -scale demolition and construction has become the past. Since the implementation of the "three red line" policies that restrict high debt housing companies' financing in 2021, China's real estate development has changed from previous radical expansion to a rapid contraction stage. Even after the policy was loosened in the second half of 2022, the signs of shrinkage were still not reversed. The high -carbon industry related to cement, steel, etc. is also affected.

The construction industry represented by real estate constitutes 42% of carbon emissions in Chinese society. The rapid changes in this industry will undoubtedly have a profound impact on China's carbon emissions. Under the double carbon goal, what opportunities and challenges will China's construction industry transformation be encountered?

Real estate turning off, steel and cement suffer from cold wave

On January 1, 2021, the "three red lines" regulations of real estate enterprises began to implement. This regulation sets the red line for China's housing planning from three aspects from the asset - liability ratio, net liability ratio and short -cash debt. If a housing company touches the "three red lines" at the same time, it will not be able to raise funds to expand its dividend debt.

This limits many Chinese real estate companies that operate in the high - liability and high turnover model. The real estate industry has encountered unprecedented debt dilemma and continues to this day since the second half of 2021. The rotten tail building and the tide of confession have also broken the expectations of people who have been in the rise for decades for decades. The grand real estate movement entered the rest.

At the same time as the market is changing rapidly, the central government is also abandoning the past city development model. In 2021, the Ministry of Housing and Urban -Rural Development clearly required to prevent large demolition and large construction in the implementation of urban renewal operations, retain the use of existing buildings, and encourage promotion from the "development method" to the "business model". Real estate development and construction method.

With the end of the era of Daloling and Dacheng, the production materials production and carbon emissions related to them also ushered in a turning point. After the Chinese crude steel output reached 1.065 billion tons of historical highest point in 2020, it has declined for two consecutive years.

According to the Economic Daily, Luo Tiejun, vice president of the China Iron and Steel Industry Association, analyzed that China's crude steel production fell for two consecutive years was caused by the decline in downstream demand. The Metallurgical Industry Planning Research Institute reports that due to the decline in demand in the construction industry, the demand for Chinese steel in 2023 is expected to be about 910 million tons, which continues to decline slightly year -on -year.

As a large carbon emission household, carbon emissions in the steel industry account for about 15%of China's total carbon emissions. Although the "Guiding Opinions on Promoting the High -quality Development of the Iron and Steel Industry" jointly released by the Ministry of Industry and Information Technology of China and the Ministry of Ecology and Environment last year put the target time of the steel industry carbon peak from 2025 to 2030, but the energy economy and finance Analysis of the InstituteFor Energy Energy Energy Energy Energy Energy Energy Energy Energy Energy Energy Energy Energy Energy Energy Energy Energy Analy -Finan -and -Settledonian Department that the long -term declined Shen Xinyi, a researcher at the Center for Research on Energy and Cleanair, also held a similar point of view. "The real estate industry contributed 40% of China's steel consumption. Although China is promoting large -scale infrastructure projects, the manufacturing industry also shows signs of heating, but the demand for steel and steel increased by these two departments is not enough to offset the shrinking real estate shrinking. The demand is declining." Shen Xin said.

The same situation also occurred in the cement industry that accounts for about 9% of the total carbon emissions in the country. According to data from the National Bureau of Statistics, the national cement output has declined for two consecutive years after the high in 2020 reaching a high of nearly five years. The output in 2022 was 2.13 billion tons, a 11% from 2020.

An Analysis of the Nature Resources Defense Council, headquartered in New York, believes that: "The development of the Chinese cement industry has entered a platform period, and production and consumption are expected to be almost difficult to increase. ", "

Cement and steel represent the carbon emissions of the building materials production stage, and the larger carbon emissions of the construction industry come from the operation phase after completion. "From the perspective of carbon emissions of the full life cycle, the construction operation phase accounts for about 70%-90%, the production of building materials accounts for about 10%-30%, the construction accounts for about 1%, and the demolition accounts for about 1%." Tsinghua University. "Tsinghua University. Lin Borong, deputy dean of the School of Architecture, said in an interview with the China City Daily in 2021.

Distributed photovoltaic welcoming policy opportunities

Carbon emissions during the operation stage mainly come from the energy of daily life, reducing carbon emissions in this stage can start from two aspects: increasing the proportion of renewable energy in energy supply, and reducing the energy consumption of the building.

The construction department can improve the self-sufficiency rate of renewable energy to a certain extent through methods such as installation of distributed photovoltaic and so on. In March 2022, the "Fourteenth Five-Year Plan" Construction Energy Conservation and Green Building Development Plan issued by the Ministry of Housing and Construction (hereinafter referred to as the "Green Construction Plan") was proposed. During the "14th Five-Year Plan" Reach 50GW. In comparison, the total light volume installation capacity in China in 2022 was 87.41GW.

Also in 2022, the "" "Fourteenth Five-Year Plan for Renewable Energy Development Plan" jointly issued by the National Development and Reform Commission and the National Energy Administration, etc., proposed that it is necessary to be suitable for government buildings, transportation hubs, school hospitals, industrial parks, etc. The distributed photovoltaic power generation of "spontaneous use of self-use and electricity Internet access" of building roofs, improves the distributed photovoltaic coverage rate of building roof. The "Planning" clearly requires that during the "14th Five-Year Plan" period, the installation rate of new industrial parks and newly added large-scale public buildings should be more than 50%.

In addition, according to this document, during the "Fourteenth Five-Year Plan" period, construction energy use power replacement operations will be carried out, and actively promoting electrification of buildings such as cooking, living hot water and heating with electricity, electricity, and heating. By 2025, the proportion of electricity consumption in construction energy will exceed 55%. Even the "Green Construction Plan", which is based on the basic principle of "focusing on Dafeng and reducing emissions", is only set to 8% of the target of the renewable energy replacement rate of urban buildings in 2025. 6% of the time increased by two percentage points.

Reduce building energy consumption

The proportion of renewable energy in building energy energy requires the transformation of China's overall energy system. Therefore, for the construction department, reducing building energy consumption is a more realistic emission reduction path in the short term. China is starting to improve the energy consumption standards for new buildings and energy conservation and transformation of existing buildings.

In 2021, the Ministry of Housing and Urban -Rural Development issued the "General Specifications for Building Energy Conservation and Renewable Energy Use". Among them, the average energy -saving rate of newly -built residential buildings and public buildings in different regions: %, The average energy saving rate of residential buildings in other climate areas should be 65%; the average energy saving rate of public buildings should be 72%. This document was implemented from April 1, 2022.

Wei Qingyi, an associate professor at the School of Architecture, Tsinghua University, told China and foreign countries that the average energy saving rate was the heating energy consumption corresponding to the building insulation status of the building in the 1980s as 100%(benchmark). The heating energy consumption compared The better the heat preservation effect.

For example, assuming that a 100 -square -meter house in the northeast in the 1980s requires 40 kWh of calories per month per month per month. Then, according to the current 75%of the current energy -saving rate requirements, the newly built 100 -square -meter house is every month every month every month. Heating meters of heating only costs 10 kWh of calories.

Wei Qingyi said that the energy -saving requirements of new houses in China are currently a relatively advanced level in the same latitude region in the world, which is higher than that of the United States and is basically comparable to Europe. However, he reminded that because real estate companies often adopt a low-cost winning strategy during the bidding stage. After winning the bid, in order to ensure the profit, it is difficult to fully implement the design requirements during construction. Therefore, the actual average energy saving rate often exists 10%-20 %Shrink. However, even if this situation is considered, the energy -saving management and actual energy saving of new buildings in China are the first echelon in the world.

Energy -saving renovation in the old community

While improving the energy -saving standards for new houses, the Chinese housing and construction department also actively promotes the energy -saving transformation of old communities in the context of urban renewal.

The "urban renewal" method entered the mainstream view of 2020. In the proposal adopted by the Fifth Five -Year Plan of the 19th Central Committee of the 19th Central Committee of the Communist Party of China at the fifth plenary session of the 19th Central Committee of the Communist Party of China, he proposed to implement urban renewal operations and "strengthen the reconstruction of urban old communities and community construction."

At the end of 2021, the "Notice on Further Clarifying the Requirements to Further Clarify the Requirements for the Reconstruction of the Old and Town Old Community" jointly issued by the Ministry of Housing and Urban -Rural Development and Reform Commission, and the Ministry of Finance clearly proposed that the "energy -saving renovation of building energy conservation in the northern heating areas is listed as the content of the transformation."

In 2022, the "" Fourteenth Five -Year Plan "Energy Conservation and Green Building Development Plan issued by the Ministry of Housing and Construction" proposed that by 2025, the existing building energy -saving transformation area will be more than 350 million square meters. It has an area of more than 100 million square meters, and the existing public building will be transformed by more than 250 million square meters.

The transformation focuses on public buildings is based on a multi - household characteristics in China. Unlike the common unique houses in Europe and the United States, most of the urban and town houses are apartment -type houses. The insulation transformation of a residential building often involves the coordination of many residents, so it is not easy to advance. "The insulation and renovation of living buildings is now promoted by the housing and construction departments of various cities. How to make the people more support and make the people benefit, it is actually a critical issue." Wei Qingyi said.

Different from residential, because the stakeholders involved in public buildings are relatively single, it is easier to promote it, but Wei Qingxuan pointed out that although the government gives certain subsidies or incentives to the transformation, the main cost still requires the owner to bear it by themselves. Therefore In the case of insufficient willingness, we need to use the market mechanism to solve these problems.

Promoting the challenge of the heat pump

In addition to improving the building's own thermal insulation performance, for the construction department, another means to reduce the energy consumption during the operation is to reduce the energy of various equipment in the room, especially the energy of heating equipment. According to a report issued by the International Energy Agency and Tsinghua University, the energy consumption of house heating and hot water accounted for 52% of the overall energy consumption of the Chinese construction department.

[Editor's note] With the continuous development of China's local capital, China's situation in foreign investment has also changed. China's local capital is gradually forming its own multinational brands, and this brand effect has begun to achieve results in stable exports and foreign trade performance. To this end, FT Chinese Network recently organized the "Road to China's Foreign Trade Transformation" topic. In the next series of articles, we will tell how representative companies in different provinces in China will form their own multinational brands in different segments in different segments. Essence Edit, contact Yan MAN.YAN@ftchinese.com.

In the previous article, we mentioned that in the 1980s, we walked through the Luohu Bridge with their homes and came to Hong Kong businessmen in the Mainland. They cooperated with all walks of life in the Mainland to start a geese array of industrial transfer in China from the model of the "front shop and behind the factory".

In fact, it is not just Hong Kong people with home -although the Taiwanese authorities still have many restrictions on the mainland of Taiwan's compatriots in the early 1980s, but there are still Taiwan compatriots who are still thinking about Hong Kong to travel to the mainland. As Taiwanese compatriots have continued to understand the mainland, naturally there are Taiwanese compatriots who have the boldness of art high people choose to invest in the Pearl River Delta.

Therefore, in the 1980s and the 1990s, Taiwanese businessmen's investment in mainland China was similar to Hong Kong businessmen's investment in the Mainland, with Shenzhen and Dongguan near Hong Kong. Among them, the Guangzhou -Shenzhen Railway entered Dongguan's first station Zhangmu Station, which is one of the heavy land invested by Taiwanese businessmen. So far, many Taiwanese businessmen have invested in business.

After the Taiwanese authorities let residents go to the mainland to "visit relatives" in 1987, more and more Taiwanese businessmen who invest in their business after visiting relatives. The direct consequence of this is that the land resources in Shenzhen and Dongguan are becoming more and more tense, which is really "rolled". In addition, many Taiwanese businessmen are not born in both Guangdong and Guangxi. If they invest in Guangdong, they are more inconvenient in language and living customs. Therefore, some Taiwanese groups have begun to leave the Pearl River Delta and develop to other parts of the mainland.

One of the choices of Taiwanese businessmen is the region of Minnan (Xiamen, Zhangzhou, and Quanzhou) represented by Xiamen. Here is similar to Taiwan's customs, and "the same voices" is a good choice as far as the human environment. However, there is the same problem as the Pearl River Delta in the southern Fujian region: land. Fujian has the characteristics of "Bashan, One Water". In the southern Fujian region in the mountains, the land that can be built by factories is really stretched. From the perspective of population density, the area of three cities in Xiazhangquan is 25,865.6 square kilometers, which is equivalent to four Shanghai cities, but the population is only 19 million, and it is less than three -quarters of Shanghai, which is mainly plain.

Therefore, after entering the 1990s, some Taiwanese businessmen who were not satisfied with the investment environment of the Pearl River Delta and Xiamen Zhangquan chose to continue to the north along the coastline to the Yangtze River Delta. In the 1980s, the Yangtze River Delta was worried about attracting investment -the high -speed development of the Pearl River Delta under Hong Kong and Macao funds that year made the Yangtze River Delta feel stressful.

Let's look back at the investment environment of the Yangtze River Delta and the Pearl River Delta. In the previous article, we mentioned that the attraction of the Pearl River Delta to Hong Kong businessmen comes from the boss of Hong Kong and the locals that can achieve basic barrier -free communication by Cantonese, which greatly reduces the cost of information transmission in the production process. Essence For the Taiwanese boss who speaks Mandarin, the Pearl River Delta's "pots of winter melon" (the playful description of Mandarin with a strong Cantonese accent) did bring a lot of difficulty to mutual exchanges. In contrast, Mandarin in the Yangtze River Delta is relatively easy to understand. In addition, the Yangtze River Delta itself is a large plain, and the land resources are very sufficient. Many Taiwanese businessmen naturally choose to take root here.

In the investment of Taiwanese businessmen in the Yangtze River Delta, Kunshan, Jiangsu is a model level. Kunshan is a county -level city -level city -level cities in Suzhou. The geographical location is inconsistently between Suzhou City and Shanghai. Here I have to mention the traffic infrastructure of the year -in the early 1990s, Shanghai has not yet begun to build Pudong Airport and Yangshan Port. At that time, the main airport in Shanghai was still at Hongqiao Airport on the west side. The Yangtze River Wusongkou is the main.

Due to the existence of the Huangpu River, in the context of the lack of cross-river bridges at that time, from Pudong on the southeast side to Hongqiao Airport and Wusongkou, they were not as convenient as Kunshan on the northwest side. Therefore, for investors, setting up factories in Kunshan on the northwest side of Shanghai can enjoy the cheaper land and living costs than the urban area of Shanghai, but also make full use of the transportation infrastructure on the west and north side of Shanghai.

However, good wine is also afraid of deep alleys, and everything is just theory. Different from Hong Kong businessmen's ancestral natives of the Pearl River Delta, relatives and friends can take care of them in the Pearl River Delta. Most Taiwanese businessmen do not know their ancestral natives of Kunshan. Therefore, for Kunshan, the difficulty of attracting investment can be imagined.

However, in the 30 years since 1990, Kunshan's Taiwanese -funded enterprises have shown explosive growth in terms of quantity and scale. Behind this is the valuable trust given by Taiwanese businessmen to the local business environment, and the result of the local government and society's dedication to serve and coordinate.

In fact, the investment direction of Taiwanese businessmen is the biggest variable of "geese" to some extent. In the previous article, we mentioned that the industrial geese array of the Asia -Pacific region in the 1990s developed to China or Southeast Asia after the "Four Asian Dragons". The direction has not been decided -the investment direction of Taiwanese businessmen is no exception.

In the 1990s, the Taiwan authorities launched two policies. One of them is a "southbound policy" aimed at encouraging Taiwanese businessmen to invest in Southeast Asia, and the other is the "quit urgency forbearance" that Taiwanese businessmen invest in the mainland. In 1994, the Taiwan authorities passed the "Strengthening Economic and Trade Cooperation of Southeast Asia", including seven countries including Thailand, Malaysia, Indonesia, the Philippines, Singapore, Vietnam, and Brunei. In 1996, Li Denghui, then the leader of the Taiwan authorities, publicly proposed the four words "quit and forbearance" at the dinner. "Remind" Taiwanese businessmen should not rush into the west.

However, "Lang is affectionate and unintentional" seems to be the best summary of the relationship between the Taiwan authorities and the countries in Southeast Asia at that time. Due to the complex ethnic composition and the significant gap between the rich and the poor in Southeast Asian countries, there are always problems with poor law and order. In this context, even if the local government will not be a difficult Taiwanese businessman, they often worry about the relationship between Chinese and other ethnic groups and it is difficult to help Taiwanese businessmen coordinate local society. At the same time, in 1997, the Asian financial turmoil hit the Southeast Asian country economy, and finally caused a tragedy in Indonesia in 1998; and from time to time, Southeast Asian countries also had emotional slogans. This is an important factor that makes Taiwanese businessmen, especially industrial investors who have worries, and is discouraged. Therefore, the Chinese nation does not have to be arrogant, and believes that our advantages in the division of labor in the international industry will easily transfer to Southeast Asian countries because of labor costs. Anyone who has been a boss knows that "being a person in advance" has always been a truth that is not broken -to attract long -term investment, you must first have the trust of others in doing things. The so -called "business environment" is also part of being a person -the business environment and trust are there, the human heart and investment are there; the business environment and trust are gone, and it is difficult to retain people's hearts and investment.

The reason why we spend a whole article explore that Taiwanese companies enter the mainland in the west, because in the 00s, Taiwanese businessmen played a vital role. In the world of Internet Internet, which began in the 1990s, the electronic processing factory that Taiwanese businessmen invested in the construction of the mainland have obtained a large order to help China quickly develop the export processing industry. In the next article, we will explore the electronic processing industry, which still occupy a pivotal industry in China exports, and the role of Taiwanese businessmen in it.

Lucas, a winner of the Nobel Prize in Economics and Professor of the University of Chicago on May 15, 2023, was died on May 15, 2023, but his profound impact on macroeconomics will survive. How to evaluate their research?

Revolutionary expected revolution, Philip Culinary criticism and "Lucas Criticism" **

Macroeconomicists have long realized that expectations will affect the outdated allocation of resources, but in the early days, they did not have better treatment methods. Generally, adaptability expectations (Barrow's 1975 works are full of such expectations) Essence This is not satisfactory, but there is no better way. Muth (1961) proposed the concept of rational expectations. Later, it was applied to the macroeconomic model with Lucas as the leader, which gave birth to a theoretical revolution.

In the rational expectation revolution, Lucas's 1972 paper was a sign. Through special assumptions, he cleverly proved that inflation and output did have a positive correlation, but this is only because individuals cannot recognize the real demand effect in the change of price (relative price prices (relative prices Changes) and currency effects. Interestingly, because this positive correlation, Lucas also opened Friedman's big joke in the text. Along the logic above, Lucas believes that the relationship between the inflation and employment (Philips curve) identified by the Kanes school is a useless "correlation", which means that this correlation cannot be used by monetary policy, higher The currency growth cannot bring more output, but it can only be pushed to high inflation. Some scholars believe that this article explains the stagnation and should be inaccurate. In 1970, the writing of this article did have higher inflation in 1969 and 1970. However, the stagnation rose was only the term in the academic community in the middle and late 1970s. In addition, this model can explain high inflation, but cannot explain the high unemployment rate.

In my opinion, rational expected revolution is generally a revolution in macroeconomic policies. If the public has rational expectations, they will adjust their wages and prices, and the monetary policy will be invalid. In the late 1960s, Friedman has discussed it, but it is necessary to really convince economics. Essence In terms of the validity of monetary policy, Lucas and his colleagues, including Sakinte, Prostkat, and Wallace, to introduce rational expectations into various macro models, trying to prove that the monetary policy will not produce realism. effect. These models, coupled with the rise in the 1970s, can be said to have the upper hand in the debate of whether the monetary policy was effective at that time.

Outside of policy debates, Lucas and his colleagues did not provide theory of persuasiveness to the economic cycle, which was a bit too big for a macro school. Logically, rational expectations are also difficult. If the market is so perfect, how can there be a significant fluctuation in economic activities? However, their efforts have been breaking through a big breakthrough. Later, they will talk about the "manufacturing" business cycle with technical shocks to solve the problem of "not fluctuating" under the perfect market conditions. Theoretically.

The article in 1972 has a very modern analysis. With micro -optimal behavior, uncertainty, and rational expectations. The impact of this research method may have a gradually deepening process. By 1976, Lucas wrote an article that had a great influence on methodology, which was called "Lucas Criticism" by the academic community. He believes that the estimation of the measurement model based on total data is often misleading. Economists should find deeper underlying structure parameters based on micro -models. In an article in 1980, Lucas advocated the establishment of computing macroeconomic models, just like an experimental platform, which can simulate the effects of various policies by computer program. His thoughts, like the prophets, are extremely imaginative, and indeed guide the direction for macroeconomists. These advocates have a wide range of responses, and macroeconomics models with micro -basis have gradually become "industry standards" until the birth of the random dynamic general balance model of integrated dynamics.

Random dynamic general equilibrium: Birth, differences and reconciliation

Kydland and Prescott (1982) for the first time published a random dynamic general equilibrium model (real prosperity cycle), which greatly changed macroeconomics. First of all, this provides a powerful economic cycle model for the valid school of the market, filling a huge gap. Secondly, in terms of tools and methods, the contribution of this paper may be even greater. Previously, various macro models needed a lot of special assumptions in order to explain different problems, so the model can be said to be a variety of. For example, the design of the famous model of Lucas in 1972 is very special. It is difficult to use other places. After Kydland and Prescott (1982), macroeconomicists began to have a general model of general sharing, which greatly improved the efficiency of research and communication. The assumptions of this type of model are very general. It is completely from the optimal behavior of the micro -subject (but it must be a clever "summary to reflect the macro behavior). Reduce any content you care, because this model can be estimated by calibration methods. One reason mentioned in the article commemorating Lucas's article, one reason is that this is a very high theoretical achievement under the influence of Lucas (probably the highest achievement). Students when I taught at Meilong University (Lucas was also a doctoral graduation, and then the three teachers and friends have won the Nobel Prize!).

The stagnation of the 1970s, coupled with the impact of the new rational expectations of macro models, made the traditional Kanes macroeconomics very passive. This impact reached a new height after the emergence of the real prosperous cycle model in 1982. However, after the 1980s, Keynes followers (using Harvard and MIT as the base camp) soon developed a general balance model containing various "friction", and Keynesia returned.

Decades have passed. Looking back at the great change of this macroeconomics, what conclusions do we draw? It can be said that the market group with Lucas has created a new method, especially invented the random dynamic general equilibrium model, and Keynes' followers have injected new methods and new models (can also be said that it can be said that it can be said that it is old) the realistic significance, and to a large extent, it has successfully explained the business cycle.

Today's macroeconomicists, even the most supporting free markets, will not argue too much on imperfect market issues, especially after the 2008 financial crisis. However, Keynes macroeconomic scientists have not completely abandoned the results of the real prosperous cycle model. They use these models as the reference benchmark for the new Kanes model. To some extent, idealists and realists reached a reconciliation.

Position geometry in economics and academic history? Market, government intervention and system

Lucas is the leader of the Chicago school after Friedman and others. His academic thoughts adhering to the early Chicago tradition, government intervention was invalid, and brought this idea into the field of macroeconomics. However, in my opinion, how much this is contradictory with Friedman he respects. One of Friedman's most famous research is about Great Depression. In the book of American currency history, he thinks The substantial contraction of currency supply is the main reason for the Great Depression. However, if the price mechanism is so flexible, the money supply should not have such a great impact on the real economy. This seems to be a contradiction, I don't know what Lucas thinks.

This reminds me of a wider issue: free market and government intervention. I think intervention can be divided into two types, one is the rule of law intervention that complies with pre-set procedures, and the other is a special intervention that does not have a preset program or does not comply with the program. The first government intervention is not so bad, solving many problems that cannot be solved by spontaneous order, especially if the intervention procedure is still subject to higher legislative procedures. In addition, for the system, transparency is crucial. Based on the insights of the old system economist Kangmus, the system is the process of collective individuals (may also supplemented by belief in the process, such as a sense of justice; the author has discussed it on this magazine). At the same time, this requires transparency. The stronger the restriction power of Gao, I think this is the essence of the system.

Speaking of the system, if the reader allows me to leave the problem a little, I want to say that the biggest problem of the new system economics is that the contract is wrong as the system (so I did not recognize the real system). Zhang Wuchang, a well-known Chinese scholar, studied in a paper, saying that he took a boat on the Yangtze River when he was a child, and a group of fibrous husbands pulled his boat. He found that in order to prevent the laziness of the husband, the fibrous husbands wanted to hire a person to sit on the bow and whipped the lazy fibrous husband. He believed that this was an institutional arrangement (in fact, the contract arrangement). I read here that year, and I laughed. Professor Zhang told the Westerners a Oriental story, but I know this is probably fabricated. If you need to whip, the boss is probably the probability of the whip. In addition, the husband can also take turns to get the whip, and it is too expensive to hire individuals to fight themselves. If the fibrous husband signed the convention, after a certain pre-set program, you can drive the fibrous rope on the shoulders to drive out the team with the standard, or throw it into the Yangtze River. This has the spirit of the system, and it is no longer a contract.

Gao Shi, Guo Shi and Cavaliers

Lucas rarely made comments on the real economy, such as the 2008 financial crisis and quantitative easing at that time. This is probably related to his academic concept. If the market mechanism is perfect, then there is really not much to say about economic policy. Lucas did not have a government position in Washington and did not have the economic consultant of any president. He said the same words and deeds and adhered to his belief in free market economics. This is respectable, he is a Gao Shi away from Washington.

The Keynesist is going to enter the WTO. They pay attention to reality, roll up their sleeves, entered the room, and develop bold monetary policy tools. The national scholar.

However, Gao Shi and Guo Shi, I think they are both knights who pursue true honor. If I have a biased bias or even a shallow fallacy, but I think he should like it. Tribute to a generation of thought knights!

Description: Taipei continued to rain on June 4th. The 34th anniversary of the June 4th Anniversary of Liberty Square attracted nearly a thousand people. Although the scale is not compared to the commemorative crowds of the previous years in Hong Kong Victoria Park, the Chinese government has continued to attack martial arts. There are still many people from all ages in Taiwan to respond, and Voice of Germany reporters also saw several Hong Kong participants who wiped out tears at the scene.

Taipei June 4th Week 34 Week commemorative event scene placed 8964 cloth strips on the ground and put electronic candles on it.

(Voice of Germany Chinese website) Hong Kong artist Huang Guo Cai, who moved to Taiwan for two years, appeared on Sunday (June 4), appeared on the 64th anniversary of the 64th anniversary of Taipei Liberty Plaza. He told DW that he was able to do this is a miracle. Sanmu was arrested in Causeway Bay on June 3rd]](<https://www.dw.com/zh/zh/六四香港六千警防街頭悼念-多人被帶走/a-65820016>)He couldn't help crying.

"I caught any behavior without doing any behavior, more than 30 to 40 policemen. At that time, he said two words:" Don't be afraid of Hong Kong people!Don't forget that tomorrow will be June 4th. "

There are many people who are as sad as he is at the scene. A 50-year-old Ms. Wu moved to Taiwan for a year, saying that she was the first time to participate in the Taiwan party for the first time, and "I want to miss it."

"Last year is the last time, everyone can't go in, it's a pity." She said that Hong Kong people can only commemorate themselves now Essence She showed DW to show the candlelight generated by her mobile app in Hong Kong last year, with tears and said she hoped that this activity would continue in Taiwan.

Taiwan June 4th 34th Anniversary The theme of commemorative activities is based on the theme of "the expansion of authoritarian expansion to defend democracy to condense the star fire to support freedom", and emphasizes that "care about China's human rights, freedom and democracy is not only the responsibility of the region, but also a part of strengthening Taiwan's democratic defense."

Danish artist Gao Zhihuo's art shame shame pillar replica was placed on the spot, reminding everyone Hong Kong cannot publicize the June 4th incident except for publicity There is no space for artistic creation. The original products displayed in Hong Kong have been seized by the National Security Department in May as evidences for investigating the suspicion of subverting the state power.

The scene of Taiwan's activities has the mourning pavilion to enlighten the people's memorial service and flower offering. There are various human rights issues on the democratic market setting up stalls, and there are many issues in Hong Kong. One of the Hong Kong couples exhibited the works of democratic athletes who served in prison in Hong Kong prison. It is hoped that Taiwanese will pay attention to Hong Kong's still human rights.

The sir of the couple's pseudonym "went to the soup" in 2019 was sued by the Hong Kong authorities for riots. He said that he and his wife at the time just assisted the girls who rescued the streets and helped the other party to escape to the alley. Congress, although he was not convicted in the end, but later felt followed, the couple decided to move to Taiwan.

Different from the early June 4th commemorative activities of Taiwan, only the organizers and a few human rights workers, and the participation of hundreds of people. Since the Hong Kong Victoria Garden June 4th Candlelight Gala cannot be held, Taiwan has been regarded as the Chinese region that can finally publicly mourn publicly publicly. In addition to the increase in Hong Kong people participating in June and Fourth, there are more and more international media interviews.

Taipei June 4th Week commemorative activity site used electronic candles as a symbol of mourning.

Huang Guocai was interviewed by a number of foreign media at the scene. He told DW that Hong Kong and Taiwan seemed to be "identified". In the past, Taiwan had experienced white terror in the authoritarian era. It has been democratized today, but Hong Kong has turned back into Taiwan.

He said: "For Hong Kong people, Taiwan becomes a place of freedom, so that everyone is nostalgic, but to breathe free air, so now Hong Kong and Taiwan become a community of fate of suppressive."

For two years in Taiwan, Huang Guo said that he was surprised at first. The Taiwanese seemed to have no sense of the fate of the Hong Kong people. Even the Beijing launching missiles had passed his head and did not respond. "The first line has been suppressed by the CCP", and Hong Kong people have also understood the essence of the Chinese regime in 2014 and the 2019 CIA.

He believes that Taiwanese people must recognize that the Communist China has changed. No matter what kind of war type, including information and cognitive wars, it is impossible for Taiwanese people to rely on themselves: "The only way out is unity."

Taiwan's political figures

When the June 4th incident broke out in 1989, Taiwan once resonated with democracy and freedom, and the call of the National Government at that time with "national feelings", which made the people in Taiwan very much concerned about June 4th.

However, with the process of democratization in Taiwan, the Chinese authoritarian government continued, and even after Xi Jinping took office to strengthen the control of Chinese society, cross -strait moved towards different routes of democracy and autocracy. More and more young Taiwanese think they are not Chinese, and therefore do not need to care about "other countries' affairs."

At the beginning of the Taipei Party, Wu Renhua, a June 4th family, delivered a speech. In addition to re -talk about his research on June 4th, the content of the speech also hoped to persuade Taiwanese to continue to care about June 4th. Taiwan respects human rights.

"The June 4th incident was a global incident. Until 34 years later, 33 cities around the world were holding the June 4th Evening Party commemorative event." Wu Renhua is telling Taiwan that paying attention to June 4th can cause countries around the world to project their attention to Taiwan.

Danish artist Gao Zhihuo's artistic shame pillar replica was exhibited in the commemorative event of the 64th week of Taipei.

Zeng Jianyuan, the chairman of the organizer of the organizer of the organizer, said directly: "The regime of suppressing the June 4th is still aimed at his weapons on Taiwan. In the future, the leaders of our country will face such problems."

He believes that regardless of Taiwan's presidential election next year, it will be "the choice of war and peace" or "the choice of democracy and autocracy". Political figures in Taiwan, especially the presidential candidates, should make a statement to the June 4th, saying that this is like a "shiny mirror" like a "demon mirror". Looking at their persistence on constitutional democracy and the determination to protect Taiwan.

Taiwan President Tsai Ing -wen posted on Facebook on the day of June 4th, mentioning the "Guizhou Metro Chorus Incident", emphasizing the differences in free creation on both sides of the strait. In the case, there is only enthusiasm and no worry. "

Vice President Lai Qingde, also the presidential candidate of the DPP, was suppressed by the June 4th incident and Hong Kong human rights. China's biggest difference ".

The party presidential candidate Ke Wenzhe and the Kuomintang candidate Hou Youyi also posted on Facebook respectively. The former said: "You can't just confront, but have dialogue; The value of progress that should be pursuing between the two sides of the strait is the actual display of the June 4th to the Republic of China pursue the faith of freedom and democracy. "

There are many young participants in various places

Another phenomenon at the scene of Taipei is that most of the participants are young people. The 19 -year -old Taiwanese classmate stated that "identifying Taiwan's nativeness does not mean that you do not need to care about June 4th." She believes that the significance of participating in this activity is that everyone gathers together. Entering Taiwan society.

The Chinese -based Chinese student Lu studied at Zhengda University. He actively participated in various human rights movements in the Philippines. He said that he had been arrested by police in the social movement. Opportunity.

"The Philippines is because of the memory of the martial law, and the authority of the authoritative rulers will be in charge of the regime. Taiwanese should also pay attention to freedom that freedom needs to be continuously reminded and continuously defended," he told DW.

Taipei June 4th Week 34 Week commemorative event setting a mourning pavilion, the picture shows the people offending the flowers.

At the scene of the event, there were even 15 -year -old middle school students who came to support. They learned about Chinese issues through YouTube. Classmate Chen said: "We have not been able to speak like China, but we finally launch those movements successfully, but China also launch these movements at the same time, but it is not successful, so I think this is close to us of."

He said that he often encountered "little pink" in playing games. In addition to regarding Taiwan as part of China, he would also use "frogs" and other words. This also caused him to discuss this issue with some classmates. "Back to", they later learned more about the problems facing the Chinese people.

Another classmate said that in the game, there are many "normal people" in the game: "There are many normal people who are normal, not everyone is" small pink ", and they are willing to share, but they are just they "White Paper Movement" is not successful. "

DW also visited a student from Mainland China. The 22 -year -old Zhou classmate studying in Taiwan said: "It is theore to say that there should be activities in many places in the mainland in June 4th, but unfortunately we have no way to participate in the mainland. Since it is in Taiwan, in Taiwan, in Taiwan, in Taiwan. A relatively safe place, I should go to participate even more. "

He from mainland China said that the older mainland people knew June 4th, but some people could not say that some people would say "student riots" from a government perspective, so it is important to continue to pass the truth.

After the implementation of the National Security Law in Hong Kong, Taiwan has become the only place in Chinese society that can mourn June 4th With the addition of increased vocal volume in Hong Kong people, and the concerns of China's authoritarian expansion, can Taiwan become the last fortress to commemorate June 4th? Or, like facing other Chinese issues, the Taiwanese have long been accustomed to it and cannot have a greater response?

Mu Yuding, chairman of the indigenous unity party, expressed his willingness to cooperate with each other through the media last week. We will see how the national alliance provides charity services in the later state elections."

Mahathir and Muiyudin created the indigenous unity party and joined the Pakatan Harapan in 2016. The Pakatan Harapan also successfully ended the status of the ruling party in the 60s of BN in May 2018. The Kremlin Sunday (June 4) warned that if France and Germany provided any long -range missiles to Ukraine, it would make the Russian -Ukraine conflict "spiral upgrade".

The Kremlin spokesman Peskov said in an interview with the Russian Channel (Rossiya-1): "We have begun to see a discussion about the 500 kilometers or more of France and Germany. This is a very different weapon, It will lead to another round of spiral rising in the tension situation. "

The United Kingdom confirmed last month that it delivered a StormShadow missile with a range of more than 250 kilometers to Ukraine, becoming the first country to provide Ukraine with remote cruise missiles. In contrast, Himars provided by the United States is only about 80 kilometers.

Ukraine has required Germany to provide a 500 -kilometer Taurus cruise missile. French President Macron also announced a new missile for Ukraine earlier. He did not explain the missile model, but said that the range of missiles was enough to allow the Ukraine to launch a spring counterattack.

Ukraine claims that it needs to include more weapons including remote missiles to resist the Russian offensive and recover the falling territory. Russia has repeatedly criticized Western countries to provide weapons for Ukraine, saying that NATO member states have actually directly participated in the Russian conflict.

Peskov reiterated that Russia will continue to have special military operations in Ukraine until "completing the task ... No other choices."
